SHIPS RESCUE 2,000 FROM FLOODED ISLAND

MADRAS, India (AP)—Two Indian naval ships have rescued nearly 2,000 persons marooned on the island of Dhanushkodi off southern India by tidal waves last week. Officials estimate the death toll at 300, including 115 passengers on a train that was washed away along with the railway bridge to the mainland.

SIX INCHES

Vancouver Belted Again

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The weatherman did not classify it as a blizzard, but don't try to tell Vancouver's motoring public that.

Six inches of new snow which fell on the British Columbia lower mainland today, made driving hazardous and in some areas streets were like outdoor skating rinks, as the white stuff fell on top of already formed ice.

Some south Vancouver hills were impassable even with the use of snow tires and chains. The usual Monday, post-holiday traffic rush was slowed to a crawl.

The weatherman predicted more snow flurries for Tuesday, however, he did say they would slacken in intensity. The cause of the latest outburst was some "very unstable air," the weather office reported.

The disturbances changed from the thaw that started Saturday and continued through early Sunday, to blizzard intensity in some parts of the province early today.

OUT OF SALT

Municipal snow crews worked overnight in most areas, salting and clearing main thoroughfares. Further difficulties were encountered when the Vancouver Salt Company reported that storms and flooding in Oregon and California have cut off the supply routes and they are out of salt for road work.

L. J. Beasley, manager of the company, said stocks were exhausted and he had no idea when more would arrive.

Police described driving conditions as "just horrible."

Coalition Votes Chief For Italy

ROME (Reuters)—The National Assembly tonight elected Social-Democrat Foreign Minister Giuseppe Saragat, 66, president of the Italian republic, ending the longest presidential election in European history.

The chamber of Deputies and the Senate, voting in joint session, elected Saragat on their 21st ballot in 13 days. Socialist Deputy Premier Pietro Nenni withdrew from the race after the 20th ballot this morning.

The Christian Democrats, the Socialists, the Social Democrats and the Republicans—the parties included in Premier Aldo Moro's left-of-centre coalition government, and the Communists all announced before the vote that they intended to back Saragat.

Saragat's election to replace ailing President Antonio Segni, who has not yet recovered from the stroke that led to his resignation, capped the longest presidential election in Europe since it took the French National Assembly 13 ballots to elect Rene Coty in 1953.

Legislators stood up and began applauding enthusiastically when the vote count for Saragat passed 482, the simple majority-plus-one of both houses required for election. He was elected with 646 votes.

Nenni withdrew shortly before the voting began on the 21st ballot.

Philip Plans Visit

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip will visit Australia for a week in February, Buckingham Palace announced today. He is expected to arrive at Canberra Feb. 20 and to leave Australia from Sydney Feb. 26. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will pay state visits to Ethiopia and the Sudan from Feb. 1-12.

Copters Waiting Weather Break

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A snowstorm pounded parts of the flood-stricken west for the second day today, isolating hundreds in rough mountain country near the California-Oregon line.

Twenty-five military helicopters awaited a break in the weather to begin a massive supply and rescue mission to the 500 persons in the Klamath and Salmon River areas of California's Siskiyou County.

The weather bureau predicted that the snow could reach more than three feet. Snow and flooding has cut off the communities of Sawyer's Bar, Salmon and Cecilville and Soma Bar for a week.

Meanwhile massive rescue and cleanup operations went forward farther west in the coastal Redwood Empire region of California.

The colder weather helped rivers recede throughout California, Oregon and Idaho after a week of rainstorms flooded thousands of square miles.

River Delta Littered With Debris

The shores of the Eel River delta were littered with carcasses of an estimated 3,000 dairy cows, redwood logs and lumber—the latter from saw mills and shattered homes.

At least two feet of snow were reported in the rugged Siskiyou.

"People could be up there freezing to death," reported civil defence chief Bill Sowle in Yreka, Calif. "They haven't had food for a week and might be without fuel."

Six days of rampaging floods, heavy rains and high winds have left at least 40 dead and damage estimated at $500 million in the west.

The Red Cross in Washington, D.C., said more than 16,300 families suffered flood losses to their homes, farms or businesses. The breakdown was 8,617 in California, 7,170 in Oregon, 365 in Idaho, and 149 in Washington.

The worst appeared over in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Nevada, but the task of repairing highways alone was a gigantic one. Floods washed away 28 bridges in Oregon, damaged or destroyed 60 in California and wiped out a dozen spans in Idaho's Shoshone County.

In California, the weather bureau reported that the new storm would cause some rivers to rise again.

Some major highways were cleared, but highway authorities estimated it would take months to rebuild in many areas.

Roads, Power Still Knocked Out

Railroad service was partially restored but travel from California to Oregon was expected to be impossible at least until New Year's Day. Power still was out in many regions.

More than 30 helicopters, including those of the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Bennington, flew mercy missions as the weather permitted in California's Humboldt County. Reinforcements from bases throughout the west were scheduled to join the operation today.

At Crescent City, which was badly battered by tidal waves following the Alaska earthquake last spring, the harbor was jammed with debris washed down from the hills. Parts of houses, butane tanks, trees and dead livestock bobbed in the choppy waters.

The town also suffered a shortage of drinking water because the floods inundated the 300-foot-deep main well. Scores of other communities in the flood areas boiled drinking water to avoid typhoid fever.

In Portland, which was threatened for two days by the Willamette River, one resident said the drinking water-tasted like "a mixture of chlorine and mud."

At Rio Dell in California, a cafe kept its gas camping stove going 24 hours a day with a pot of stew simmering for refugees who walked as far as 50 miles from their wrecked homes.

Ships Rush To Freighter

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—British and French ships early today steamed toward the crippled 7,144-ton Lebanese vessel Katerina Samona sinking in the Atlantic 200 miles off Spain's northwest coast.

The 5,000-ton French ship Fort St. Pierre radioed the sinking ship and asked the master to prepare to abandon ship for a rescue bid.

The 6,855-ton British steamer St. Esprit also headed toward the rescue area.

The Katerina Samona, carrying a cargo of lumber from Vancouver to Plymouth, first radioed it was listing with two holds and the engine room flooded.

Later it radioed it was sinking and was jettisoning cargo.

UN In Last-Ditch Bid To Avert Showdown

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Negotiators made last-minute efforts at the United Nations today to resolve the crisis over peace-keeping assessments with Secretary-General U Thant taking a leading role.

The negotiations were at a crucial stage as diplomats sought to head off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over the Soviet refusal to pay for peace-keeping costs for the Congo and Middle East.

A UN spokesman said that would return to his headquarters office this afternoon for the first time since he went to a hospital Dec. 4 for treatment of a peptic ulcer.

He was expected to confer with key delegates, including Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko and U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, UN sources said.

Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana also took an active part in the talks, the sources said. He met early in the day with Paul Tremblay, Canada's chief delegate, and scheduled a later meeting with Fedorenko.

A Canadian spokesman said Tremblay and Quaison-Sackey exchanged views and ideas on closing the gap between the Russians and Americans and that the Canadian had put forward some suggestions for accomplishing this.

The negotiators hoped to work out some agreement before the assembly's next meeting, Tuesday morning. The Security Council can't function after Thursday-New Year's Eve—unless agreement is reached on the basic issue or unless two disputed council seats are filled without a vote so as to avoid a challenge of the Soviets' right to vote.

The Soviet Union will not pay assembly assessments to finance 'The Congo and Middle East peace-keeping operations because it contends the Security Council alone has the right to start and finance such operations. So it is more than two years behind in its total assessments.

The United States says that if a vote on anything is called in the assembly, the Soviet Union must suffer the penalty set out in Article 19 of the UN charter, which states that any member two years behind in assessments shall have no vote in the assembly.

To avoid a showdown, there has been no voting since the assembly convened Dec. 1, and all necessary business has been done by general consent. But diplomatic sources said assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana had failed to get agreement to elect Security Council members the same way.

MAY SKIRT DEMAND
Delegates were hopeful some way would be found to get around Indonesia's demand to be allowed to vote against Malaysia, which is otherwise unopposed to replace Czechoslovakia.

But they said Quaison-Sackey had failed to resolve a contest between Jordan and Mali for Morocco's seat.

Jordanian chief delegate Abdul Monem Rifa'i told a reporter that if no agreement could be reached on some informal method by Tuesday, he would demand in the assembly that the election be decided before Friday by the usual vote. That would bring on the big-power showdown.

Record Cold Shivers Dawson City

EDMONTON (CP)—Record low temperatures for two consecutive days were set at Dawson City, Y.T., Sunday and today, the weather office reported.

The mercury dipped to 63 below Sunday three degrees below the former mark for Dec. 27 established in 1917.

Temperatures dropped to 63 below again early today. Previous low for Dec. 28 was 58 below, also established in 1917.

80 White Hostages Still Alive in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—White mercenary soldiers on a rescue mission in the northern Congo radioed today that about half the 160 white hostages of the rebels in the region between Paulis and Wamba are still believed to be alive.

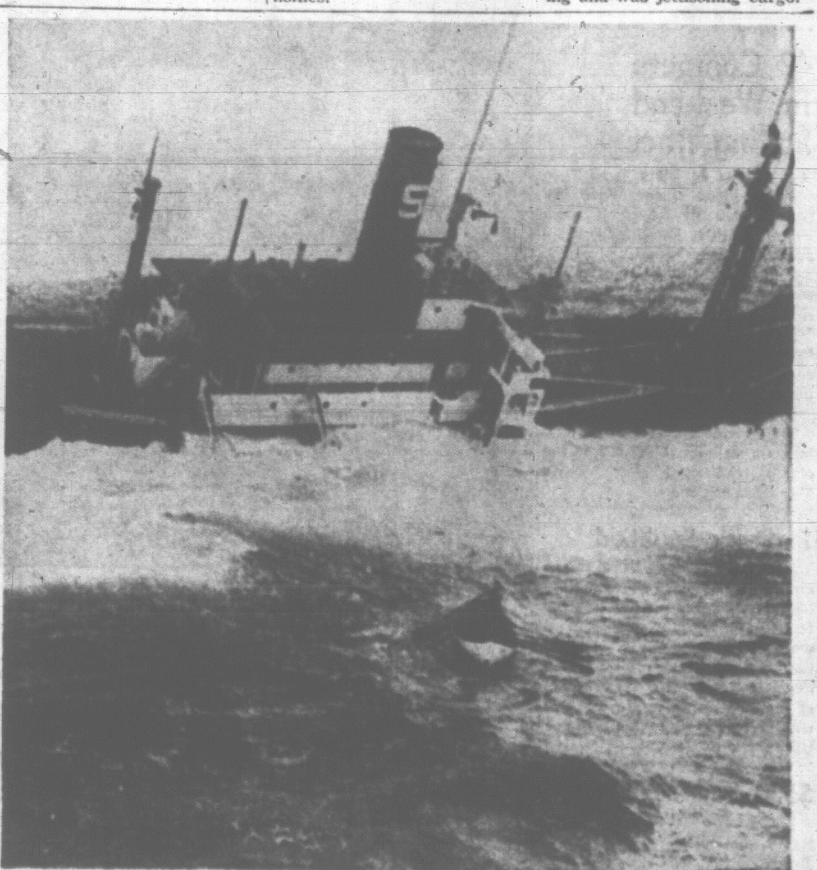

But the fate of 80 other missionaries and merchants still is unknown, the radio message said. A United Nations doctor was reported to have been slaughtered by the rebels, who have butchered more than 160 whites in the last two months.

A column of Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe's Belgian

and South African mercenary fighters is driving southeast from Paulis, capital of Uele province, to Wamba, about 60 miles away.

The rescue column radioed that it had freed a group of about 10 Greek merchants at Metchi, a small town 25 miles south of Paulis. The merchants gave them news of the other hostages, the message reported.

The UN declined to identify the doctor reported killed by the rebels. A senior official of the world organization said the doctor's next-of-kin had not yet been informed.

CAPTAIN AND THREE CREWMEN are removed from listing freighter S.S. Smith Victory in longboat from U.S. Coast Guard cutter Rockaway in the South Atlantic last

50,000 MORE COPIES

Bureau on Top Of Tourist Rush

By JOHN MIKA

The B.C. Government Travel Bureau is beating the gun in its race to keep up with the tourist rush.

It already has begun distributing its 1965 tourist accommodation directory—popularly known as the Green Book—and is planning a record circulation.

Some 350,000 copies of the 128-page directory will be published for the coming tourist season, a boost of 50,000 over the last edition.

The new directory has added a number of features to the standard listings of all campsites, trailer courts, motels, hotels and guest homes registered in the province.

A list of the many museums popping up in British Columbia communities has been added for the first time and populations, golf courses, boat launching facilities and other pertinent information have been compiled under the names of areas and cities for handier reference.

The Green Book also carries ferry schedules and other transportation information, names of hunting and fishing guides and maps of areas in which they operate game laws and trophy fees.

The directory is a good indicator of the swelling tourist traffic to the province.

When it started in the late 1940s it listed only about 1,000 places accommodating tourists compared with the 2,300 listings in the 1965 directory.

The first circulation figures grew small but the distribution industry waxed until it hit 100,000 copies in 1959 and since then it has jumped 50,000 copies upward each year.

It is sent all over the world to entice tourists and help them plan a visit here.

Thousands of copies are sent through the province's trade office in San Francisco and through Seattle to all travel agents in the United States and to such organizations as tourist offices and automobile clubs.

Within the province distribution is heavy towards chambers of commerce, tourist bureaux and businesses as well as the general public.

No outlet is overlooked—even the Canadian Customs offices have stacks of the publication at all border crossing points for the convenience of tourists.

Beauty, Beast Show Delights Youngsters

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Young audiences—and a good percentage of adults too—are finding delightful entertainment currently at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School where Bastion Theatre Studio is staging a show catering to the holiday appetite for color, laughter and fantasy.

To the fairytale atmosphere of Beauty and the Beast has been added a variety of intriguing characters and situations.

The script has plenty of imaginative touches, even though it is a slow starter; however, it gathers momentum rapidly and provides the actors with effective climaxes.

Director Anthony Burton and a talented cast make the most of the opportunities. They develop a lively pace and a number of quite excellent characterizations.

Among the most successful is the magician, Harry Hill, an authoritative, technically mature performance.

SWEARING-IN SET JAN. 4

NANAIMO—Aldermen-elect Mega McDougall, Gordon McKay and Jack Parker will be sworn in at a special inaugural meeting of city council Jan. 4.

Immediately following the meeting, Mayor Pete Maffeo will hold a dinner at the Diner's Rendezvous.

Death Never Takes Holiday

DUNCAN—"People can get killed on Christmas Day just the same as any other day," said Magistrate Ken McAdam this morning.

He was speaking to Harvey Edward Pike, Duncan, who had admitted driving through a downtown red light.

Police said Pike accelerated dangerously through the light when there was a large number of pedestrians about. He was fined $25.

42 Compete In Weekend Sailing Race

A total of 42 boats in El Toro and Davidson classes Saturday participated in Royal Victoria Yacht Club's two-mile race around Flower Island.

Humphrey Golby won Davidson class competition, followed by Ron Mack and John Todd.

Juniors Brian Woodward and Robin Boyd dominated El Toro racing, capturing first and third places, respectively.

Dick James placed second. The Boxing Day race will now become an annual event like the club's traditional New Year's Day competition.

Embassy Snubbed

SAIGON (UPI)—Vietnamese commander-in-chief Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh snubbed the U.S. embassy for the second week today. He failed to show up at a scheduled round table discussion between top officials of both countries. No reason was given for Khanh's absence this week or last.

$500 Bail Set

Magistrate William Ostler today set bail at $500 for James Elter, 625 Beaver Lake Road, when he appeared in city court today to face a charge of driving under suspension.

He was remanded to Jan. 7 for plea.

$200 MILLION?

Man Said Near Great Treasure

The legend of Oak Island, where a fabulous treasure is believed buried, sprang back into the news today.

A man maintained in Hamilton, Ont., he is within 20 feet of the treasure, variously estimated at between $10 million and $200 million.

The late Tom Nixon of Victoria was among many searchers for the treasure off the Nova Scotia coast. But he and friends gave up in 1934 when money ran out.

He charted a 460-foot tunnel comprised of an ingenious system of drains allowing water to flow through the tunnel into the pit where the treasure is said to be located.

He said the tunnel was made by the Inca Indians of South America and is an engineering wonder.

His theory was that around 1530 three ships were loaded with gold and sailed north to save it from Spanish plunder.

Nausea Drug Causes Rat Malformation

NEW YORK (CP)—A report that popular antihistamine drugs cause congenital malformations in animals brought comment today from two firms which manufacture the drugs.

Both said that although antihistamines have been used for years they have no evidence that they cause abnormalities in human beings.

Dr. C. T. C. King, an endocrinologist with the U.S. public health service, told a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science Sunday in Montreal that the U.S. food and drug administration has been urged to look into reports that antihistamines can cause animal malformations.

He said there is no firm evidence the drugs affect humans.

King said that the drugs, recommended for motion sickness and the nausea of pregnancy, caused cleft palate, undeveloped jaw, small mouth and skeletal deformities in the offspring of rats.

King said the drugs are meclizine, produced in the United States by Charles Pfizer Company under the trade name Bonine; cyclizine Marezine and chlorcyclizine Perazil, both produced by Burroughs-Wellcome. He said a doctor's prescription is required for chlorcyclizine but the others can be purchased over the counter without prescription.

MARINER IV CONTINUES ON COURSE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mariner IV sailed past the 50,000,000-mile mark Sunday on its 325,000,000-mile flight to Mars, operating normally and sending a steady stream of information back to earth.

Launched Nov. 28 from Cape Kennedy, Fla., the spacecraft is scheduled to pass within a few thousand miles of Mars on July 14 and send back pictures of the planet.

The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Sunday Mariner has so far made nearly 10,000,000 scientific and engineering measurements in space.

It is moving at 7,186 miles an hour in relation to the earth.

Sure, Fill 'Er Up With Pig..Uh..Gas

BRIXHAM, England (UPI)—A 60-year-old inventor here said today he has adapted a surplus British army car to run on methane gas obtained by heating chicken or pig manure.

"The gas-producing plant cost less than $150 to make," Harold Bates said. "My present vehicle—an old 42-h.p. desert car—has done thousands of miles in test runs. It is shortly to be demonstrated to a number of government officials."

He said the converted engine has no "offensive odor." A reporter who rode with Bates in the car at speeds up to 70 m.p.h. said it "goes like a bomb"—which in England means very well indeed.

The ministry of agriculture has expressed interest in the new fuel and has asked Bates to arrange a demonstration. Chemical engineers differ as to the merits of the invention. Graham Barrett of Exeter University says it isn't practical for the "ordinary person" because of the time and effort involved.

CANADIAN FIRES

Property estimated to have been worth more than $155,000,000 was destroyed through fires in Canada in 1963.

Brian Lee of Kingston Technical College is more encouraging.

"In the country, where manure could be available on the spot, the gas could be manufactured quite cheaply," Lee said.

Bates said about two cubic feet of his manure fuel produces the energy equivalent to a gallon of gasoline. The fuel is stored in a cylinder in the trunk of the car.

He said a special conversion unit costing only a few dollars could be applied to regular engines. A switch would make it possible to use either gasoline or the special gas.

PRAIRIES DIGGING OUT OF ANOTHER BLIZZARD

REGINA (CP)—Southern Saskatchewan residents again began to dig themselves out of snowdrifts in the wake of another in a series of blizzards that ripped through the area during December.

The storm, which plugged rural and secondary roads and left urban streets heavy, stranded four Weyburn youths, but all were rescued unharmed Sunday.

However, two deaths were reported in northern regions to lift to 10 the number directly associated with three weeks of bitter cold and sporadic blizzard conditions in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Mother in Happy Landing After Having Baby Girl

VANCOUVER (CP)—It was a jet-set delivery Saturday aboard Air Canada flight 805.

Mrs. Kenneth Adams, a pretty Paris-born blonde, gave birth to a six-pound, five-ounce baby girl as the aircraft circled Vancouver International Airport with 99 passengers on a flight from Montreal via Edmonton.

Mrs. Adams, who met her husband in London while she was studying English, proved to be equal to the task.

Dr. M. Criollo, a member of the University of California's medical faculty, took charge of a makeshift delivery room and said later Mrs. Adams "did just what I told her."

Stewardess Louise Lapointe rigged up curtains in a first class area and purser Paul Gendreau boiled hot water and fetched towels.

The new mother had her husband, a Vancouver city police constable, with her. They had been visiting a brother in Edmonton.

Mother, father and daughter, Brigitte, are all fine.

Fifth Column Charged To Red China by Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)—Malaysia charged today that a Red Chinese "fifth column" in Borneo is aiding Indonesian efforts to "establish... a Communist dictatorship" on the divided island.

A government announcement said captured Communist documents placed all members of a so-called "National Liberation League" under the direct orders of a Red underground group.

The documents, written in Chinese, instructed the organization to recruit its membership from Malaysians of Chinese origin. It was told to accept non-Chinese members only with strict caution.

The government said it would outlaw the organization on grounds it is "simply and solely a tool of the Communists in their campaign, in alliance with the Indonesians, to enslave the people and to establish (in Borneo) ... a Communist dictatorship."

PEKING (Reuters)—China's harvest rose for the third year in succession in 1964 and generally achieved the level of past high-yield years, the new China news agency said Monday.

It said grain, cotton, oil-bearing crops, sugar cane and beet, tobacco and fruit all showed substantial increases.

Musician Chris Gage Found Dead in Hotel

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chris Gage, 35, one of Canada's best known jazz pianists, was found dead in his hotel room here Sunday. Police said a note was discovered in his room.

An autopsy was to be conducted today to determine the exact cause of death.

Gage, whose real name was Christian Giesinger, had been under a court order not to threaten, molest or interfere with his former wife, actress Pat Gage.

He was twice charged with breaches of the order.

The Regina-born pianist entered show business at the age of seven with his brother's travelling band. At 12 has was playing night clubs and on radio broadcasts.

He turned down an attractive offer of a hockey career with the Boston Bruins of the National League to confine with his musical career. He moved here in 1949, spurning offers from Louis Armstrong, Arthur Lee Simpkins and Frankie Laine.

In 1951 he married his first wife, Merle, in the United States but the marriage ended in divorce. He married Pat in 1959 but this marriage was annulled last January on the grounds that the U.S. divorce from his first wife was not recognized here.

SNOW, FOG, FREEZING RAIN

Europe Has Cruel Yule, Harsh Storm Kills 223

LONDON (UPI)—Snow, fog and freezing rain caused at least 223 deaths in Western Europe over the Christmas weekend, it was reported today.

Bitter weather blanketed the British Isles and continental Europe from the iron curtain to the North Sea. There were no immediate reports on conditions in Russia and its European satellites.

The heaviest casualties were reported in icebound Britain, where at least 98 persons were killed in highway accidents alone. Many more died in various weather-connected accidents.

The weather around Madrid was so bitter a policeman shot a wolf that had been driven into the city by the cold. The only place in Western Europe reporting good weather was Southern Spain, which basked in spring-like temperatures around the 60-degree mark.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

France reported 35 traffic deaths and several near escapes. Twenty-two persons were killed in Sweden and at least 20 in West Germany, and Finland reported 11 deaths each in various accidents. Spain had nine deaths, Italy five and Holland three. These and earlier reported tolls made up the total.

Northern Sweden reported temperatures as low as 10 below zero, the coldest in western Europe.

Italy reported sleet on the Venice Lagoon, snow on volcanic Mt. Vesuvius and rain and hail battering Rome. High seas forced cancellation of ferry service to the holiday isles of Capri and Ischia.

SNOW REPORTED

In France, snow was reported as far south as Marseille and Toulouse.

Austria reported snowfalls all over the country. Southeastern Norway had the coldest Christmas season in memory, with temperatures as low as 6 degrees.

A blizzard swept Wales and western England. Millions of people were left without electricity when the storm cut power cables. Drifting snow trapped hundreds of vehicles.

Seventy-mile winds and torrential rain hammered the Solly Islands, off southwestern Britain, where Prime Minister Harold Wilson is vacationing.

MAN THAWED AFTER DUNK

DURHAM, England (AP)—Leslie Ritson, 40, who was found frozen solid in a block of ice, was reported thawed out and resting comfortably at Durham County Hospital today.

The former navy sailor was knocked out when he stumbled and fell into a two-foot deep ornamental pool Sunday.

Later he revived sufficiently to drag himself clear. A caretaker found him unconscious nearly 12 hours later.

Water Pollution Battle Planned By Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A $1 billion battle against water pollution in New York State was announced Sunday by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The program, to be financed through a $1 billion state bond issue, is aimed at ending pollution of lakes, streams and rivers in the state.

"I am giving the problem of water pollution top priority," the governor said in announcing his call for the bond issue.

The governor said that two-thirds of all New Yorkers live in areas affected by pollution. He said 1,167 communities and 760 industrial sources are still pouring treated or untreated waste and even raw sewage into the state's waterways.

Rockefeller, in a television program a week ago, described many of these areas as "cess-pools."

PURE WATER

The proposed pure-water program would end the governor's cherished pay-as-you-go fiscal policy, but Rockefeller said that by spending money now to correct the problem, the state can avoid future "staggering costs" caused by water pollution.

Under the program, the state and federal governments would each pick up 30 per cent of the cost while the localities would pay 40 per cent. A 30 per cent share is $513 million.

The $1 billion bond issue will go before the voters next November if the 1965 state legislature, which convenes Jan. 6, approves.

The governor estimated the cost of building local sewage treatment plants and intercepting sewers between now and 1970 would be $1.7 billion.

Village Swamped By River

ST. RAYMOND, Que. (CP)—A quarter of this village 30 miles west of Quebec City was flooded Saturday by the St. Anne River.

The river spilled its banks because of unusual high temperatures that melted snow and ice. Rain, falling since Friday, continued.

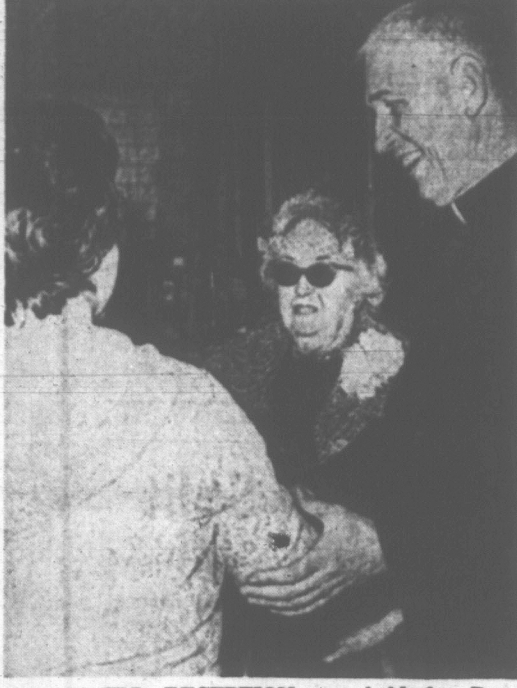

The flood waters forced evacuation of dozens of families.

The town's civil defence formed a 15-man emergency squad and, aided by volunteers, helped transport people and belongings to high ground.

Andre Girard, St. Raymond civil defence co-ordinator, said most of the village was out of danger. Town council decided not to declare a state of emergency and had not asked for aid from neighboring towns.

China Aids Cambodia

LONDON (AP)—Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk announced Sunday that China has agreed to supply military equipment, including heavy artillery, for 22,000 Cambodian troops.

RC Exiles Self, Protests Racism

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest says he is going into "self-imposed exile" from the Los Angeles archdiocese "as the strongest protest I can make" because "I was ordered to maintain a silence on racism."

Rev. John V. Coffield, 49, Sunday called his departure "a solution to an impasse between my cardinal (James Francis Cardinal McIntyre) and myself."

Father Coffield said in a farewell statement to his parishioners that he was ordered to take a five-month "enforced vacation" from California earlier this year because he had spoken out against controversial proposition 13.

The proposition, upheld by voters last November, amended the state constitution to prohibit any abridgement of an individual's choice to whom he might sell or rent a home or apartment. In effect, it nullified state anti-discrimination housing laws.

"Scarcely anyone knew of the shocking way I was ordered out of California after I had spoken out—against—proposition 13," Father Coffield said in his statement.

"I WAS WRONG"

"I was ordered out on June 22nd and was not allowed back until November 15th," he said. "I was hopeful that silent acceptance of the injustice to me and my parishioners would help defeat the proposition. I was so wrong. I should have fought it openly."

"I want to have no part in the continuing silence and lack of repentance which is daily driving away many excellent people."

"On Saturday, Nov. 14th, I was ordered to maintain a silence on racism. I chose instead a self-imposed exile from the diocese as a gesture of protest against, and rather than be a part of, the continuing exile of silence."

"I also accept my exile as a solution to an impasse between my cardinal and myself."

Emil Seliga, a layman and spokesman for the priest, said Father Coffield would go to Chicago for a period of three to six years to do missionary work particularly among Latin-Americans.

Boy, 12 Shoots Guardian

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP)—Police here said a 12-year-old juvenile offender shot the wife of this town's police chief Sunday because she would not let him leave the house.

Mrs. Alex Earle, 43, is in good condition in hospital in Hamilton with a gunshot wound in her chest.

For the last 18 months the Earles have had one or two juveniles, who had been arrested in the country, stay in their house until disposal of their cases in court. Police said the boy had been in the Earle home for Christmas.

Chief William Johnson of North Grimsby Township police said the boy shot Mrs. Earle in the chest with Chief Earle's .38-calibre revolver. She had refused to give him his clothes so that he could go to see his parents.

The boy fled the house without his clothes and was later found hiding behind a barn.

More Than a Party Split

LIBERAL PARTY MEMBERS are naturally indulging in some pleasurable speculation as to the full effect on the federal Conservative Party which may be expected if Mr. Balcer and Mr. Martineau push their present estrangement to the point of severing connections with the Conservatives to sit as independents. Such a loss, probably to be followed by further attrition of Quebec members, would be a very serious blow to the Conservative Party, particularly with a general election rumored for next spring.

But there is much more significance in the situation than that involved merely in the political fortunes of the party, or the advantages which Liberals might reap. It would be a tragic thing for Canada as a nation if the Conservative Party were to split into English and French wings opposed to each other. For under such conditions the party would cease to be a national party, and on the worst possible line of cleavage—a racial one.

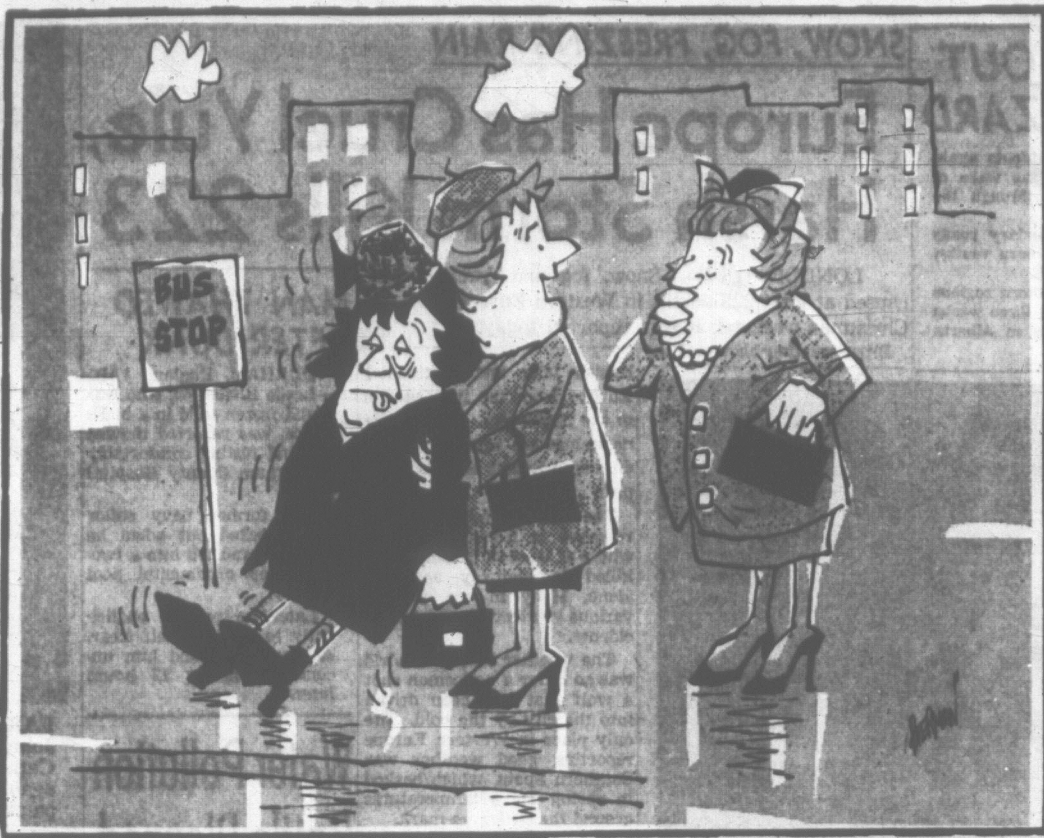

Canada, particularly in this crucial era, needs political parties with nation-wide bases. This applies especially to the two traditional national parties which have alternated in office since the beginning of Confederation. And no party claiming to be nationally representative can make the claim stick if it has no voices to speak for French Canada.

A national party, and particularly one managing the government, should have members of parliament from all sections of the country, from both major race-language groups, from a broad cross-section of the population. Were the Conservative Party to lose all its Quebec spokesmen, then, Canada itself would be the loser.

This need not happen. The quarrel of Mr. Balcer and Mr. Martineau is not with the Conservative Party but with the Party's present leader. Throughout recent months, and especially in the flag debate, it has almost seemed as though Mr. Diefenbaker were determined to alienate his Quebec following—and this attitude has been presented by many of his parliamentary supporters as well. Such a trend is nationally divisive when we desperately need a unifying political force; it is retrogressive when vital events in Canada are moving ahead at an accelerating pace.

If the Conservative Party is to avoid disaster—and perhaps creation of a political vacuum which might be filled by other elements—it will have to reunite itself under a leader who appeals to it and to Canadians on a national rather than an exclusive basis. Mr. Diefenbaker clearly is now unable to make such an appeal. What the Conservative Party must do seems obvious.

—Sierman, Victoria Daily Times.

FROM OTTAWA

The Tory Anti-Quebec Split Widens

PARLIAMENT presented a strange spectacle at the adjournment, with a crisis-ridden Liberal government facing a Conservative opposition which seems bent on mass suicide.

The agony has not ended with the departure of the members. To add to the government's troubles, the Supreme Court has rebuked the immigration department (which is suspect in some other matters) for its behavior in the case of the Viol brothers. To add to Conservative woes, Mr. Balcer and Mr. Paul Martineau, at a joint press conference, have threatened to break openly with the party they once served as ministers.

Western

Pearson Advantage

In this double crisis, Mr. Pearson has one obvious advantage over Mr. Diefenbaker. His own position is not threatened. The government has suffered damage and the Pearson team, to say the least of it, has not distinguished itself for teamwork. But even if there is further damage to come, the prime minister can limit it and reassure the country by resolute political surgery.

The trouble in the Conservative party is of a quite different character. No doubt Mr. Diefenbaker could remove it by removing himself from command but with the threat of dissolution still on the horizon, many Conservatives are reluctant even to consider a fight over the leadership.

The rift between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Balcer has been threatening for almost a year; probably longer since the award of an uncertain title to the Quebec leader was, no doubt, an attempt to appease the hard-pressed and rebellious Quebec wing of the party. But, with or without title Mr. Balcer is not a lonely rebel at personal odds with his chief. If he is lost to the party, the Quebec wing is lost and with it, almost certainly, any hope of a successful Conservative challenge even to a troubled Liberal government.

Mr. Martineau's role in last Monday's press conference is of special interest. Of the 10 Quebec Conservatives in the House he probably has the closest ties with English-speaking members. Perfectly bilingual, he represents Pontiac-Temiscamingue, a two-county riding divided between Irish Protestants and French Catholics. A lawyer and RCAF veteran, he is the most industrious and talented of three former Quebec ministers on the Conservative front bench. He was also at one time parliamentary assistant to Mr. Diefenbaker.

But he made it reasonably plain on Monday that his decision is dependent on that of Mr. Balcer whom he recognizes as Quebec leader. If the Conservative party under its present leadership cannot hold Mr. Balcer, it will almost certainly lose Mr. Martineau too. Even if one or two Quebec members can somehow be held in line, there will be no one left in the official opposition with even a shadowy claim to authority in French Canada.

The quarrel within Conservative ranks is not the result of the flag issue alone. At issue is the whole attitude of Mr. Diefenbaker to the province of Quebec. It is no secret that this has been a source of anxiety to some English-speaking Conservative members.

1957 Strategy

It is true, as some western Conservatives recall, that Mr. Diefenbaker won the election of 1957 with a strategy that virtually ignored Quebec. But this is almost certainly misleading.

If no special appeal was addressed to Quebec at that time, Mr. Diefenbaker did appeal as a new force on the political scene. With his vivid personality and dramatic flair he at least promised a fresh approach to people grown weary of an old administration.

Moreover, it is one thing to win by ignoring and another to win by opposing Quebec. There was no reason in 1957 to attribute an anti-Quebec attitude to Mr. Diefenbaker. He would, of course, disclaim it now but the breach with Mr. Balcer and Mr. Martineau is bound to be accepted in Quebec as more significant than any number of disclaimers.

Conservatives in Quebec

There is only one case on record in which an election was won in the teeth of French Canadian opposition. This was in 1917, in the midst of a desperate war, when a manpower crisis forced Liberal conscriptionists into union with the Conservatives against Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The effect was that Quebec turned its back on the Conservative party. Forty years had to pass before the Conservatives won a majority in Quebec, only to see it destroyed again in 1962-63.

Not only would an anti-Quebec strategy appear hopeless nowadays; it would also be intolerable to some English-speaking Conservatives. One member, Mr. Fairweather, has already publicly denounced any attempt to regain power in this fashion. It was also noticeable in the last phase of the flag debate that some other members appeared to be quietly detaching themselves from the engagement in disgust with the course chosen by their leaders.

Mr. Balcer and Mr. Martineau have opened the door but they have not yet formally walked out. In effect, they have rejected Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership but they still describe themselves as Conservatives. This suggests that their rebellion is a last desperate attempt to force the party to hold a leadership convention. If they succeed, the struggle which has been lacking the party, will be in the open. If they fail, it is difficult to see how the Conservatives will be able to avoid a disastrous anti-Quebec strategy, whether the leaders wish it or not.

A SORT OF CANADIAN MASOCHISM

Time to Remove the Hair Shirt

THE author of a recent book on Ottawa's political history has received a thoughtful criticism from one of Canada's leading businessmen. He says the author has missed the main point proved by his own work—the Canadian people's failure to build a real nation. Sometimes they have rallied briefly in meeting a crisis but nothing more. The nation remains unbuild and the chance to build it is already lost.

This view deeply permeates our great national debate and has become almost a death wish among the more ardent intellectuals. So many hair shirts are being worn these days that our fur-bearing animals must be threatened with extinction. Still, the latest fashion is better, I suppose, than the stuffed shirt which used to be the badge and status symbol of success in earlier times.

Definition

But those who despair of a Canadian nation never tell us precisely what they mean by that word. How do they define a nation? What sort of nation do they want? Where has Canada failed?

It has failed in many nobler hopes, as all nations do, but certainly not in the businessman's chosen field. He cannot deny that Canadians enjoy probably the second highest living standard in the world. Business, at any rate, has not failed though it has made some ghastly mistakes.

Of course the resulting prosperity is not enough. What else, then? Surely the first test of a nation is the ability to enforce its laws and the test is especially difficult where the laws attempt to provide equal justice for all men. Some of the largest nations do not even make such an attempt, their justice being only the whim of the government.

In Canada we have aimed at higher goals and, while sometimes missing them, have succeeded on the whole. There are no States of Mississippi here, no secret trials, no concentration camps, no massacres of missionaries, no cannibalism so far reported and no threats to any foreign peoples.

A second test, unknown in a considerable part of the world, is the freedom of the individual. Here, too, we have not done badly. Nowhere is the individual freer than in Canada. We don't even bother to outlaw the Communists who would destroy our freedom because we feel confident of its safety.

The third and unfortunately the popular test of nations in our demented age is naked power. Here we have failed. In terms of power we don't amount to much.

If power is the objective of nationhood we have no particular reason to regret its lack after the experience of this century. Most of the great nations, as greatness is commonly defined, have used power only to ruin others and often themselves.

By all these tests and many others—the sciences, for instance, the arts and the vague thing called culture—our success is not very striking but we should be careful to distinguish greatness from its mere shadows.

A nation, said Carlyle in his study of the French Revolution, is never great when it declares its greatness. All the splendid postures and gestures of that historic occasion, the liberty, equality and fraternity, ended in Napoleon's whiff of grape shot and latterly in the worship of another hero. No, greatness depends on what a people does in its daily life, not what it says in a constitutional convention.

We are now going through our Canadian revolution with methods not so grand, dramatic and logical as the French but also without certain inconveniences. It is not easy, at such a time, to keep things in perspective and our perspective is warped by our curious habit of self-disparagement, our native inferiority complex. A sense of proportion, now and then, wouldn't do us any harm.

Most Comfortable

On the one hand, with all its faults, Canada is perhaps the most comfortable and fortunate of all nations for the average citizen. We usually forget that fact as we take our pulse several times a day on television to measure our health. If we are not pre-eminent in other areas of human endeavor at least we can claim to be the world's champion hypochondriac.

On the other hand, we are also one of the Western world's most awkward nations to govern and, at the moment, are governing quite badly. There is no more amusing spectacle in the contemporary scene than Canadian statesmen lecturing foreigners on their political behavior when we can't elect a majority government at home and have taken nearly a year to decide the simple question of a flag. Judged by our national sense of humor we remain an underdeveloped region in desperate need of foreign aid.

All things considered, however, we have been erring lately on the side of pessimism, almost masochism. Like my friend, the disappointed business man, we observe every gnarled and blighted tree while overlooking the Canadian forest.

It is the duty of politicians, journalists and others concerned with public affairs to criticize our governors and denounce sin but maybe the critics, including this one, have carried their useful work too far.

If we reach the point where we all begin to doubt the nation's survival it will not survive. If we take our pulse often enough we may finally persuade ourselves that we are mortally sick. Then we shall be past saving.

The pessimists and masochists haven't pushed us to that point yet. In fact, the great debate may well be the surest sign of our youthful healthiness since all discontented Canadians, except a few separatists in Quebec, are only trying to build a better nation. Now that we have a more attractive emblem in our new flag perhaps we could afford to remove the hair shirt. It is almost worn out anyway.

Open Mind Essential

By MAX FREEDMAN

From Washington

IT IS WORTH recalling the great phrase of the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg who said the significance of NATO is that it is inside the charter and outside the veto. We have now reached the stage, in the argument over the mixed nuclear force, where Senator Vandenberg's rule must be the guiding principle if serious strains inside the alliance are to be avoided.

Freedman

President Johnson is acting wholly within the Vandenberg tradition. He has entered into no public controversy with President de Gaulle. He has threatened no reprisals against anyone. The way has always been open for France, if she so chooses, to join the mixed force at a later stage. The flexibility shown by President Johnson during his negotiations with Prime Minister Wilson of Great Britain should have surprised no one familiar with the American position.

Neither now nor earlier has the United States blundered into its own defeating folly of trying to impose its self-plan on its European partners. The Johnson Administration would be very glad if the European members of NATO used the interlude for reflection now open to them to improve the organization of a genuine Atlantic force.

By contrast, President de Gaulle is thinking almost exclusively of French interests rather than of NATO's future. He and his accredited spokesmen are full of threats and warnings of reprisals if the French plan for European co-operation does not prevail.

It is worth noting how opponents of the multilateral nuclear force have gradually shifted their ground as this proposal has steadily gained support.

At first the critics laughed at the proposal of mixed crews as a naval absurdity. Then they argued that the mixed force was without military value. Now they are saying that the proposal diverts attention from more important matters such as the reunification of Germany.

It will come as a profound surprise to the supporters of the mixed force, both in Washington and in Bonn to learn that their support of this project is building a barrier against the ultimate unity of Germany. There is an old saying which warns us against making the perfect enemy of the good. Why should we do nothing about the nuclear problems which now so deeply trouble the NATO countries merely because we can do nothing effectively for some considerable time to achieve German unity?

No Clash

Besides, there is no clash between this concept of unity and the proposal for a mixed force. The real choice is very different. It is whether West Germany should link its nuclear destiny with the Western Alliance or whether it should be denied a sense of partnership in this vital area.

Such a denial would mean that the reunited Germany, when it comes, will be a discontented Germany armed with a bitter grievance and looking once again for trouble. The Germans who have taken the lead in campaigning for the mixed force are deeply patriotic Germans committed irrevocably to the ideal of German unity.

The real truth of the matter is that the mixed nuclear force is no obstacle to German unity. It is most definitely an obstacle to the revival of a German spirit of revenge, of a Germany eager once more to go it alone, of a Germany not afraid to follow a path lit by the flames of military ambition. It is precisely because the mixed force erects certain wise restraints on the re-emergence of such a ruinous and dangerous Germany that the project has won so much support in West Germany and other NATO countries.

Nor is it usually realized that the mixed force, even if it is called into being by various governments, would take between four and six years before it became a working reality. This period will provide time for parallel action inside NATO to complete this nuclear sharing with greater political co-operation.

Here indeed is the pivot of the whole argument. The friends of the mixed force do not want it to be seen in isolation as part of the nuclear problem. They want it to be examined in relation to the welfare of the whole alliance. They agree that the project should be rejected if it can be shown that it makes a fictitious rather than a genuine contribution to the progress of NATO. They deeply regret that so many members of Congress are taking up an attitude of opposition before the Johnson administration has had a chance to present its case. It surely would be prudent for Congress, and public opinion generally, to keep an open mind on these matters until the present negotiations with Western Europe are over and the administration submits its case for final judgment.

Rather Stop a Snowball

INCLUDED IN THE MORE ENCOURAGING news of the year's end is the report from Tokyo that North Korea has protested against United States soldiers throwing snowballs at the Communists in the demilitarized zone. Objection was also taken by the North Koreans, the report said, to the "vile gestures" made by some American soldiers.

In the light of actions and gestures on that real estate a few years ago, it is gratifying to hear that snowballing draws objection. If the ammunition of hostilities can be reduced to a few well-compacted spheres of the white stuff, we've come a long way from the events of the early 'fifties.

The offending American soldiers may not have been very polite in the recent exchange, but the North Koreans should take comfort in that old axiom of childhood about sticks and stones breaking bones, but words never hurting.

We're Stuck With It, or Vice Versa

A BELGIAN BIOCHEMIST asserts that man could not live in a state of weightlessness in space for more than five days, that until we have learned much more about space travel a moon shot is impossible, and that the governments of Russia and the United States are keeping secret the facts of the total failure of their space travel experiments.

It is not known just what evidence the scientist has to support his beliefs, or how other scientists might refute his claims. But the possibility that he is right opens up a pressing requirement for us earthlings.

It is this: If we cannot live in space and therefore cannot get off our planet, then we had better begin in all seriousness to keep the earth habitable for all time to come. We had better recognize that this is all we have, and that we're going to have to maintain it, share it, improve it and hand it on to posterity in good order.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

It's funny how quickly everything runs to a slower tempo immediately after Christmas.

There's a feeling of lassitude. A hesitancy to start anything that may take an effort. Everything and everybody looks a little tired. Even the greeting cards hanging over the fireplaces and on doors and walls droop and sag.

There's another holiday up ahead with more parties and more turkey. Right now, we'd prefer to settle for a good hamburger. This feeling, blamed so often on the fun and food of the season, is more likely generated, I believe, from a subconscious desire to avoid a step we must all take very soon.

A step that will lead us into the unknown months of a new year.

The old year of 1964, no matter how it has treated us, is familiar. There's little left about it that we do not know, and understand.

Like a favorite coat, we would draw it close and keep it with us, even if it is a bit tattered and worn.

Up ahead, the doorway to 1965 is slowly opening.

If there is any curiosity in our makeup—and I think nearly everyone has a bit of it—then we are wondering what lies beyond that door.

What will we find when we step over the lintel—as step we must, for there is no choice.

What joys, honors or sorrows are waiting there? What problems will we have to face, what major decisions will we have to make?

There is little wonder that in these last days of the old year, even the most courageous among us would turn and go back along the way they have come if it was possible.

We can only go forward. All we are granted now are these few days to say farewell to the old and make up our minds to greet the new.

A friend of mine put it rather well when she came in this morning for a cup of coffee. She said: "It's like standing on a swaying bridge over a turbulent stream that rushes and roars under your feet. Behind you is all the fun you've had, the tears you've shed and the mistakes you've made in the past. It all looks so familiar."

"Ahead it's still out of focus. You can't see what you are getting into. You think the sun will be shining and you hope the flowers will be in bloom, but it is not clear as yet."

"The water under your feet scares you. It's impossible to go back. You hesitate to go forward."

"It's a funny feeling, I can tell you!"

We sat quietly for a moment, looking at each other over our coffee cups.

In imagination I crossed her Bridge of Life and stood with her on solid ground at the far side of the rushing stream. I was sure, in her own mind, she had named as time.

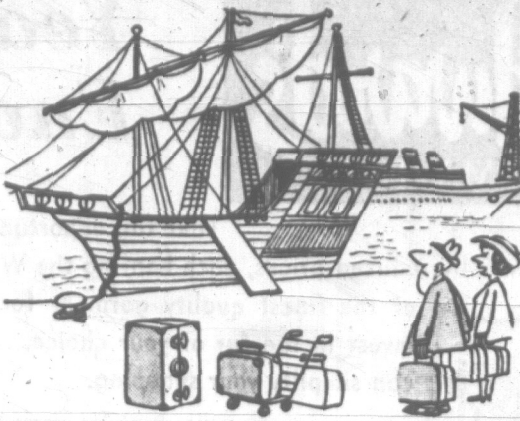

I, too, peered ahead to see if the sun was shining but as she had said, it was not very clear.

"It's life," she reminded me, as she put her cup down and stood up to leave. "We've got to face it, so let's do it with a smile!"

I can think of no better message to bring you—than just that.

When, in a few days now, the door to 1965 opens wide and we step over its lintel, let's do it with a smile!

Reds Hold Most Of S. Viet Nam

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—Leaders of the Viet Cong claim the guerrillas fighting the government of South Viet Nam control three-fourths of the country and more than half its 15,000,000 people as the year nears an end.

Chairman Nguyen-Huu Tho made the claim in a statement to the ruling politburo of the Viet Cong central committee.

The statement would be difficult to challenge.

He said the balance of forces is shifting in favor of the Viet Cong, and this, too, coincides with available information on the Saigon side.

On Dec. 20, 1960, when the Viet Cong formally organized itself, the guerrillas had at most 2,000 men under arms, opposing government armed forces of some 400,000. Today, Viet Cong strength is estimated at around 120,000 against a government force of some 615,000 men under arms, including police.

Each time during the last four years that the government has sought to wipe out the guerrillas in some given area, Saigon has bitten off more than it could chew. The mobility provided by troop-carrying helicopters has helped, but not enough.

Saigon and its Washington ally spent tens of millions of dollars in 1962 on a project called Operation Sunrise, aimed at cleaning out a key Viet Cong base 30 miles north of here.

NEARLY A FAILURE

The operation was nearly a complete failure and the Viet Cong now is stronger in the area than ever.

Later in 1962 and 1963, the government and U.S. advisers launched the "strategic hamlet program," aimed at bringing one community after another under government control.

Until President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown in a military coup Nov. 1, 1963, the statistics from this program looked encouraging. But U.S. officials found at that point that only a small fraction of the hamlets supposedly pacified were really under control.

Then came Premier Nguyen Khanh's "pacification plan" in February. It concentrated on only 13 provinces in the Mekong River delta. But even this concentration proved inadequate.

Three months ago the area was whittled down to five provinces, all suburbs of Saigon, to be pacified under the "hoc tap" (co-operation) plan. To help out, most of the 25th Division was pulled out of central Viet Nam for service in the area.

Since then, central Viet Nam—roughly the northern half of the Saigon republic—has deteriorated at an alarming rate, at least partly because of in-

Venezuela Boycotts Ships

CARACAS (AP)—The Venezuelan port workers union today started boycotting the ships of nations which trade with Cuba.

The first target was the Spanish liner Virginia de Churrua, which docked at La Guaira, the port of Caracas. Workers refused to unload it.

A union spokesman said the boycott, long threatened, will also affect shipping of Canada, Britain, France, Mexico and other nations maintaining commercial relations with Cuba. Ambassadors of the nations involved have asked President

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

My Season's Greetings to you who read this column is without qualification. But I must give an extra thank you to those among you who reduced my arguments and my ego this past year. Your mail indicates the readership is varied, in a party sense and in critical attitudes. The most useful comments are those which take apart the analyses I make of the political scene. It is a rare column which does not bring a blast and I'm learning, from the rich variety of reaction to almost any opinion, not how to evade you, but something of the cantankerous excitement in an active Canadian citizen feels today.

Several weeks ago I reviewed lightly Tom Driberg's book The Mystery of Moral Re-Armament and related it to one personal experience (the visit of an MRA team to The Lakehead) and to a bill brought before Parliament by Liberal Chas Carter which would tighten, in the name of decency, control over television programs. I enjoyed and was informed by Driberg's book but I thought I had made it clear that he was an avowed long-time foe of MRA. Further, I believed my own point was that the scare tactics used by the MRA group which visited my home city tended to confirm a Driberg argument that MRA tends to be pre-occupied with sex in a puritanical way.

Since that column I have received four copies of an MRA rebuttal to Driberg by an English theologian, J. P. Thornton-Duesbery, entitled The Open Secret of MRA. These copies, plus letters from five provinces, demonstrate that MRA has some vigilant supporters in Canada.

There was one characteristic in all the letters that seems a consistent part of the MRA approach. This is the grand assertion that MRA has done marvellous good throughout the world. Perhaps it has. The only direct evidence I witnessed was of another kind: if blackened the reputation of an entire age-group of young people in my home city, apparently in order to make the point that Moral Re-Armament was imperative.

The weakness of the Thornton-Duesbery book is that it is really readable only in conjunction with Driberg's book. Despite his animosity and the highly-colored phrasing of his indictment, Driberg gives one a fuller history of MRA than any other source I have found, including all the MRA books and pamphlets by its dead leader, Frank Buchman, and his successor, Peter Howard.

Thornton-Duesbery proves the length of Driberg's animus and effectively creates doubts about his motives. He handles well two of the main criticisms by Driberg: the alleged approval of Hitler by Buchman and the speculation that MRA's considerable funds come from right-wingers who see the movement as an anti-labor, anti-Communist force.

Driberg traces a shift in MRA away from an emphasis on a personal experience with Christ to a general ideology based upon an emphasis on morality which will remake men of all religions and is, so MRA claims, a major force among non-Christians in Asia and Africa. This made sense to me because I've noticed recently that the full-page ads which appear in daily papers several times a year have been emphasizing Christ less than before and stressing the universal effectiveness of MRA's four absolutes.

Thornton-Duesbery is not convincing in his rebuttal of this particular argument perhaps on the honest grounds that he sees MRA as fundamentally a part of Christianity.

It seems apparent to me that MRA does not have a particular social or political program for reform, other than the moral regeneration of men, especially those who are in positions of political and economic power. There is no reason why it should have such a program. Most churches and religions do not have them. Political and social acts flow from the character of the persons and communities which respond to the religious beliefs. The question does bother me, however: Why is MRA necessary, above and beyond the religions we have, Christian and otherwise?

It is clear that MRA is ambitious and well-managed and financed. It operates on a world-scale; indeed, it often seems inordinately proud of its accomplishments, citing victories in Japan, Brazil, India, South-Africa, Cyprus, which consequently have appeared rather ephemeral, if victories at all. One does not need to be either a skeptic or an enemy of MRA, like Driberg, to doubt these claims and the VIP name-dropping which accompanies them in the big ads and the books.

I began this column by citing the variety of contrary opinions which come to me. I am grateful to MRA adherents for putting the case for their movement. I have not found it convincing and do not believe MRA is going to save the world. This does not mean that I believe the movement has not been, is not and will not be, a force for good and the betterment of some individuals. I am still not clear why MRA is needed; but then a lot of people would dispense with political columnists and the New Democratic Party. Meanwhile, I advise readers who are interested by MRA to read both, Driberg and Thornton-Duesbery.

What causes BACKACHE and how Dodd's Kidney Pills may help

One widespread recurring form of discomfort is what is commonly called backache. One frequent cause of backache can be traced to sluggish kidney action. This condition often may result in irritation of the urinary system, followed by backache and tired feeling.

Based on a formula introduced over 70 years ago, Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys to help overcome the irritated condition, and to bring relief from the backache and tired feeling. Dodd's Kidney Pills are available at any drug counter in the blue box with the red band. The important thing to look for is the name. You can depend on Dodd's.

Minerals Seen Disease Factor

By CARL MOLLINS
MONTREAL (CP)—Chances of getting cancer and assorted other diseases may well depend in part on the nature of the soil where you live, a panel of scientists reported today.

Specialists in geology, chemistry, medicine and pharmacy told the annual congress of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that mineral traces in soil, getting into the diets of humans and animals, hold important clues to the cause and cure of such scourges as cancer, heart disease and sclerosis.

Studies in various parts of the world strengthen evidence that the prevalence of certain diseases in specific localities results from a mineral imbalance in the bodies of residents, said panel chairman Harry W. Warren, a geologist at the University of British Columbia who has studied the effect on plants and animals of metal traces in soil.

Dr. Arthur Furst, director of the Institute of Chemical Biology at the University of San Francisco, presented evidence that "metals, both essential and non-essential, may play a vital role in the cancer processes."

Geologist Helen Cannon of the United States Geological Survey in Denver, Colo., reported on U.S. studies showing that plants and soils in areas with a high incidence of cancer and heart disease contain more arsenic, nitrate, boron, manganese, chromium, titanium and lead than in areas with a low incidence of the diseases. Tuberculosis was more prevalent in the low-metal areas than in the high-metal localities.

Dr. R. J. F. H. Pinesent, medical researcher in Birmingham, England, reported on British studies indicating certain disease rates are related to mineral traces in the earth.

Health records show, for example, that the incidence of pernicious anemia increases according to geographical location along a diagonal line from southeastern to northwestern England. The rate of anemia appears to be related to the pattern of iron deposits in England, he said.

Dr. Warren said many variables are involved in the relations between mineral traces that get into diets and cause harmful surpluses, deficiencies or imbalances in human and animal tissues. Plants, animals and people differ in the degrees to which they are susceptible, he said.

TELLS OF CASES

He told of cases in British Columbia, Finland and the Island of Jersey in the English Channel where farm livestock with a low reproduction rate was found to be deficient in copper. A high mortality rate among sheep in a certain area of New Zealand was traced to a cobalt deficiency resulting from the abnormal mineral content of the grazing area.

In a British study of causes of death during 20 years in an old tin and lead mining area along the Devon-Cornwall border, cancer accounted for more than 45 per cent of all deaths in one hamlet. Mineral traces in the water supply were blamed.

Dr. Furst said it appears that the higher the atomic weight of an element, the more likely it is to be a cancer-causing agent in excess. Heavy elements like mercury, lead, arsenic, chromium, nickel, silver, tin and cadmium are proven or suspected cancer agents.

He said that by understanding the way minerals work in the cancer-making process "it may be possible to predict the structure and hence the design of new anti-cancer drugs effective in some cancers."

BATH COST MAN $40

Having a bath in his hotel room cost a man $40 on Christmas Eve.

James Wakeham, Cherry Bank Hotel, told police that when he emerged from his bath shortly before 6 p.m. he found a prowler had been in his apartment.

The thief got away with $40.

Canada to Take More Interest In Pacific Area

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Canada, with time, will take a greater interest in Pacific affairs than it does at present, one of Britain's top administrators said Saturday.

Trafford Smith, assistant under secretary of state in the Colonial Office, said like the United States which became more and more concerned with the countries and colonies of the Pacific, Canada would become more involved in Pacific affairs.

Mr. Smith stopped over in Victoria for the Christmas season before proceeding on a familiarization tour of the Pacific islands.

He is staying at the home of his cousin, Mr. Tom Dalzell and Mrs. Dalzell, 848 Bank Street.

His tour will take him to the Fiji Islands, the Gilbert and Ellice Islands colony, Pitcairn Island, Tonga protectorate, the New Hebrides, the Solomon Islands and eventually Australia.

SELF-GOVERNMENT

Britain's policy, he said, is to encourage all its island colonies to become self-government states.

"We would like to see them run their own affairs," he said. But he admitted that this wasn't as easy as it looked on the surface.

Some island groups, he explained, were dependent on Britain for support because of limited natural resources.

Others, like the Fiji Islands, didn't want the British to pull-out because of possible racial troubles.

"As things stand now, the Indians outnumber the Fijians, he said. "The Indians have been there for three generations and there is no question of them going."

JOINT ADMINISTRATION

As for the New Hebrides in the South Pacific, with an area of roughly 5,700 square miles, they were still jointly administered by the British and French.

The population of Pitcairn Island, settled by some of the mutinous crew of the famous HMS Bounty, was decreasing as most of the young people are now leaving for New Zealand, he said.

"There are now about 83 persons living on the island," he stated.

Mr. Smith is well acquainted with the Pacific islands as he was a British administrator in various island colonies during the 1930s.

He is the man who won over a French naval force at the New Hebrides to fight for General Charles de Gaulle when France capitulated in the Second World War.

He is also a former lieutenant-governor of Malta, and was the last head of the British administration office in Palestine before it became an independent state.

Inspectors, Companies Talk Again

The first talks since lumber inspectors voted for strike action two weeks ago have taken place between company and union negotiators in Vancouver.

Bargaining resumed at a meeting Wednesday between Inspectors Local 1-288 of the International Woodworkers of America and Forest Industrial Relations, representing the Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau.

Local 1-288 president Rod Beaton said Saturday no further meetings have been arranged although the union is ready to meet at any time.

The talks weren't broken off, he said. He wouldn't like to say whether an end to the dispute was in sight.

Lumber inspectors voted 96 per cent in favor of strike action after rejecting a conciliation board report. A government-supervised strike vote now is being taken of the 270 inspectors.

The conciliation report, proposed the grading stamp now under exclusive control of the inspectors could be leased to lumber companies. The stamp designates the grade of processed lumber.

COMPANY CONTROL

"If this happens the companies will control the grade and we will not be able to maintain proper standards," said Mr. Beaton.

The rest of the woodworkers' union would honor inspectors' pickets if the issue came to a strike. This could tie up the entire forest industry, he said.

The conciliation report also recommended a 30 cents an hour raise over two years. This was rejected by the inspectors who want a 70-cent boost to $3.37 an hour over two years.

Result of the government-supervised strike vote is expected shortly. Strike action can come on 48-hour notice within 90 days of the vote upholding the move.

Stop Both Hulls? Try It Sometime

TIME OUT

"Ready or not here I come out with my trusty old pitching wedge, Dick!"

By The Canadian Press

Stopping one Hull is tough, but containing both of them appears nearly impossible.

Boston Bruins kept Bobby Hull from scoring his 30th goal Sunday night but younger brother Dennis tallied once and helped set up the winner as the Black Hawks ran their unbeaten National Hockey League string to 10 games with a 6-2 victory in Chicago.

Fred Stanfield broke a 2-2 tie in the second period on a passing play with Eric Nesterenko and Dennis Hull. Four minutes later the younger Hull wrapped up the win with his third of the year.

Detroit Red Wings defeated New York Rangers 3-1 in the only other game played Sunday night and the league standings finally became untangled. Montreal Canadiens lead with 39 points, Chicago has 37, Detroit 35, Toronto Maple Leafs 32, New York 27 and Boston 18.

The Canadiens bombed the Wings 6-3 Saturday night while the Hawks defeated the Leafs 5-3 in Toronto and Boston blanked New York 2-0, providing goalie Ed Johnston his first shutout this season.

Stan Mikita gave the Hawks a big jump, scoring his 11th and 12th goals in the first period Sunday. His second came while Chicago enjoyed a two-man power-play advantage, but Boston broke it up a minute later when Forbes Kennedy scored for the shorthanded Bruins.

GETS PENALTY GOAL

The Bruins tied the score early in the second as Dean Prentice beat goalie Denis DeJordy on a penalty shot after referee Frank Udvardi ruled that Mikita had tripped Prentice on a clear breakaway.

Doug Robinson and John McKenzie added further Chicago goals.

Bobby Hull picked up three assists to run his league-leading point total to 50 on 29 goals and 21 assists in 31 games—11 more points than Mikita.

The Wings scored once in each period against the Rangers in what would have been a rout but for the stellar goaltending of Jacques Plante, who made 41 stops.

Ron Murphy knocked in Norm Ullman's rebound to send Detroit ahead in the first frame but Vic Hadfield tied it midway through the second. A power-play goal by Floyd Smith decided the issue late in the period and Ullman added an insurance goal into an empty net with 31 seconds to play.

A strategy move by Detroit coach Sid Abel apparently backfired in Montreal, where the Wings used sub goalie Carl Wetzel to give Roger Crozier a rest and found themselves behind 4-0 early in the second period.

RALLY BRIEF

Abel then removed Wetzel in favor of Crozier and the Wings rallied briefly, cutting Montreal's lead to 4-2. But the Habs regained control of the game in the third period and never enjoyed less than a two-goal cushion.

Henri Richard, Claude Larose and Claude Provost beat Wetzel in the first period and Dick Duff scored what proved to be the winner, his first goal for Montreal, at 7:09 of the second. Crozier then appeared and Detroit, caught fire on markers by Ted Lindsay and Ullman.

Dave Balon, however, sent Montreal ahead 5-2 early in the finale. Ed Joyal added Detroit's third goal and Bobby Rousseau closed out the Montreal scoring.

Toronto's largest crowd of the season, 14,780 fans, gathered to see Bobby Hull in action Saturday night and weren't disappointed as he registered goal No. 29. They had little else to cheer about as the Leafs took it on the chin.

Chico Maki, Phil Esposito, Bill Hay and Mikita also tallied for the Hawks. George Armstrong, Ron Stewart and Ed Shakk scored for the Leafs. The Bruins, blanked 3-0 by New York Friday night, bounced back the next evening on Johnston's faultless netminding and two goals by ex-Ranger Prentice.

Even a horse got into upset act

The upsets even invaded the animal kingdom. Northern Daner outran the favored Hill Rise to become the first Canadian-bred to win the Kentucky Derby. Two weeks later, still only the second choice, the three-year-old colt owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto did it again in the Preakness.

That was enough to convince the bettors, who installed the Dancer as favorite to complete his sweep to the triple crown by winning the Belmont Stakes. He finished third behind Quadrangle and Roman Brother.

The Dancer, a runaway winner of the Queen's Plate, ended his career when he was injured in a workout after his Belmont defeat. But he had done enough to become the first Canadian horse to be named top three-year-old of the year on North American tracks.

There were decisive victories in both Allan and Memorial Cup hockey finals as Winnipeg Ma-

Subs and Sledders Unlikely Choices For Olympic Titles

By Canadian Press

The best laugh at a New Year's party a year ago would have greeted the fellow who said:

"Canada is going to get its Olympic gold medals from a bunch of bobsledders and a couple of subs from the eight-oared crew."

And before the merriment died, he could have topped that one by adding that there would be a second-place silver medal in judo and no medal at all in hockey.

In pre-Olympic speculation, the most prominent medal possibilities were figure skater Wendy Griner, Rev. David Bauer's hand-picked hockey team, track stars Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers, and the Vancouver Rowing Club-University of British Columbia eight.

No one had heard of Vic Emery, George Hungerford, Roger Jackson or Doug Rogers. But it turned out to be a terrible year for betting on the favorites, beginning at the Winter Olympics in Innsbruck.

Miss Griner, four-time Canadian titleholder in figure skating who had finished as high as second in previous world championships, was among the also-rans in the women's singles while her perennial runner-up and fellow-Torontonian, Petra Burka, captured third place

Jerome Had Triumphant Comeback

Five weeks after his return to Canada, it was learned that Kidd had competed with pulled tendons in both ankles and an ailment in his left foot which required corrective surgery.

Meanwhile Harry Jerome, the world record-holding sprinter from Vancouver who had limped off the track as a loser at Rome and in the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia, made a triumphant comeback by winning a bronze medal in the 100 metres and finishing a close-up fourth in the 200.

Rogers, the strapping Toronto factory worker who was born in Truro, N.S., and whose father lives in Vancouver, brought new Canadian popularity to the little-practised sport of judo by finishing second in the heavy-weight division.

Even a Horse Got Into Upset Act

The upsets even invaded the animal kingdom. Northern Daner outran the favored Hill Rise to become the first Canadian-bred to win the Kentucky Derby. Two weeks later, still only the second choice, the three-year-old colt owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto did it again in the Preakness.

Kimberley Rink Made It a Double

Golf produced another repeat winner as veteran Nick Westlock of Toronto defended his Canadian amateur championship. George Knudson of Toronto was the Canadian Professional Golfers Association tournament winner. Moe Norman of Toronto was low Canadian in the Canadian Open, won by Kel Nagle of Australia.

Ina Hansen's Kimberley rink teamed with Dag's Vancouver foursome to give B.C. a curling double when she captured her second straight Canadian women's title. Ernie Boushy's Winnipeg entry gave Manitoba the first national mixed curling championship.

The long-dormant career of George Chuvalo perked up when the Toronto heavyweight boxer outpointed high-ranking Doug Jones to earn a shot at former champion Floyd Patterson in an elimination bout for the title.

Benita Senn of Toronto won the Canadian women's tennis title but the men bowed out early as Roy Emerson of Australia took the men's singles and led his countrymen to a 5-0 sweep over Canada in the first round of Davis Cup competition on their way to recapturing the trophy from the U.S.

Wayne MacDonnell of Vancouver won his third straight men's closed badminton championship while the women's crown went to Jean Miller of Montreal. Chan-narong Ratanasungsang of Thailand won the men's open title.

Canucks Tough But Russians Grab 5-3 Win

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The Russian national hockey team captured its second straight victory in the three-team international tournament here Sunday night by defeating a determined, hard-hitting Canadian team 5-3 before 4,500 fans.

Yuri Volkov, combining with Stanislav Petukhov on a breakaway against the rugged Canadian defence, broke up what had been an airtight game with his second goal of the contest to give the Soviets a two-goal lead with six minutes remaining. That all but wrapped it up for the current Olympic and world champions.

The Soviets added another marker deep in the third period to go out in front by three with Vladimir Yuratinov pounding in a 12-footer. The final Canadian tally was by Ross Parks only 14 seconds later.

This was Canada's first appearance in the six-night tournament but the single loss was a blow to her chances. The Russians chalked up their second victory with only two more to go. The tourney is scored on a basis of two points for a victory and one for a tie.

Tonight the Canadians returned to action, facing Czechoslovakia in the third game of the double round-robin tourney. The Czechs lost 8-2 to Russia Saturday night.

Volkov scored his other goal in the first period as the Soviets raced to a 2-0 lead at 17:43 of the opening stanza. Fenimar Alexandrov scored the other goal of the opening period.

The Canadians came back to pull to within one goal at 2-1 with only 12 seconds gone in the second period, scoring when Russia was caught with two men in the penalty box. Gary Dineen took a pass from Barry MacKenzie off the opening faceoff and went down the middle to lift a 12-footer into the upper left-hand corner.

Russia's Vyacheslav Starshinov again put his team two goals ahead at the 3:39 mark with the Canadians a man short because of a penalty, but Canada came right back with Marshall Johnston's tally.

Canada's second goal was the result of a great effort by Roger Bourbonnais who saved the puck from an icing call just before it reached the goal line, and then passed back to Johnston who came rushing in and drilled it home.

GREAT GOAL-TENDING

That set the scene for Volkov's crucial score at the 13:53 point of the third period and all but killed Canada's chances for an upset.

The game was marked by 12 penalties, each team getting six in a contest of hard knocks. There were no major injuries, despite the rough play, but Canada's Reg Abbott received several stitches from a scramble in front of the Russian goal late in the second period.

Great goal-tending on both sides had the crowd, which wildly backed Canada, in an uproar. Canada's Ken Broderick turned back 30 shots on goal, many of them from close range.

Defence Wrecks Tech In Sun Bowl Struggle

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Georgia's defence staved off a fourth-quarter Texas Tech flurry and its ball-control offense ground out a 7-0 victory in the Sun Bowl football game Saturday.

The defence limited Tech to just one first down on a 15-yard holding penalty—in the first three quarters. Tech's All-American Donnie Anderson gained just 19 yards on seven carries.

Georgia grabbed its 7-0 margin the second quarter. The score was set up on a 52-yard swing pass from quarterback Preston Riddlehuber to halfback Fred Barber.

Three plays later fullback Frank Lankewicz barreled over from the two. Bobby Etter kicked the convert.

INTEGRATION HINTED

Grid Prestige Fading Behind Racial Barrier

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Muffled reports were heard in Montgomery Sunday that the blue-grey all-star football game will lower its racial barrier soon in order to restore the contest's prestige.

The comment came after the North beat the South 10-6 Saturday in a game played before 16,000 fans in an on-again, off-again rainstorm.

One source, who asked not to be named, said it was his opinion that officials of the contest would have to accept integration as a part of athletics if the 27-year-old classic is to insure its future.

Record Crowd for Opening Day

NEW YORK (AP)—Gummo won the $68,175 California Breeders' Champion Stakes for California two-year-olds Saturday at Santa Anita opened its winter meeting before a record first-day crowd estimated at 71,000.

Native Diver took the $23,350 Palos Verdes Handicap at the Acadia, Calif., opening. Gummo, ridden by Don Pierce, overtook the favored Hempen in the drive to the wire and won by more than one length.

Time for the seven furlongs was 1:24 3-5. The victory was worth $45,675. Gummo paid $14.80, $6.80 and $5. Hempen paid $4.80 and $4 and Arkaroni returned $5.80 for show.

The Palos Verdes, at six furlongs, drew seven older horses, with jockey Jerry Lambert taking an early lead on Native Diver and winning by 2 1/2 lengths. Viking Spirit was second by two lengths and Sledge was third. The time was 1:10 1-5. Native Diver earned $14,350. Native Diver paid $6.80, $4.60 and $3.20. Viking Spirit returned $5.20 and $3.20 and Sledge $2.60.

DOUBLE OLYMPIC CHAMP TOPS WORLD-WIDE POLL

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Middle-distance runner Peter Snell of New Zealand, double Olympic champion in Tokyo this year, clearly won a world-spanning poll for sportman of the year taken by a Stockholm evening paper. The paper Aftonbladet asked 70 sports journalists from 31 countries to grade their sports favorites of 1964. They gave Snell 712 points compared to 675 for U.S. swimming ace Don Schollander and 576 for Ethiopian marathon king Abebe Bikila.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

BROADWAY BULLETIN BOARD . . . One of the hottest stories of 1964 cooled down after a government official quietly showed a heckler that he had "the goods" on him—"the goods" including wild orgies at a posh Washington hotel. The big critic suddenly became mild in the face of the evidence, and is likely to fade out of the news headlines as quickly as possible . . . The death of Bill Bendix, which saddened everyone who knew him—he was such a darling person—means the end of a multi-million-dollar lawsuit he had filed against CBS. Bill and Martha Raye were scheduled to co-star in a TV series, but the network cancelled with the explanation that Bill's health might not permit him to fulfill his contract. Unfortunately that was correct, but Bill's lawyers instituted a suit claiming he was in good health and the CBS statement had caused him to lose jobs.

Now that Synanon House has been filmed by Columbia Pictures, and Junkie Priest looks like a good bet for a movie treatment, the Hollywood studios will be looking into the incredible story of Dr. Robert Baird soon. He's the fearless doctor of East Harlem whose saga is more amazing than the other two put together; his explosive book, Narcoticsville, will be a best-seller. Watch the cinema makers snap up those Doubleday Galleys.

The state department was just as happy as officials of Notre Dame over the banning of John Goldfarb. They feared it would surely offend all those oil country sheikhs we coddle so tenderly . . . The changes of off-track betting have become almost nil, since the bewildered city officials who thought it would solve their money problems have learned the facts of gambling life. Instead, some of them

COUNT 'EM—As a gag, service station operator Robert Powers, above, of Strongsville, Ohio, sent a $30 bill to one of his lady customers in "mirror writing"—everything backward and upside down. The customer replied in like vein. She delivered a heavy box containing 3,000 pennies taped together in one long string. (NEA Telephoto)

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question an Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Kevin Reekmo, age 12, of Bountiful, Utah, for his question:

Who was Nicolaus Copernicus?
Last night, so we believe or pretend to believe, a bewhiskered old gentleman drove a treasure-loaded sled pulled by reindeer over the roof tops of the whole world. He goes by the names of Santa Claus, Kris Kringle and Saint Nicholas, but he is not related to Nicolaus Copernicus.

The Saint Nick who showered this happy day with gifts was named in honor of a boy bishop who lived hundreds of years ago in Asia Minor. This generous boy Nicholas liked to give presents, especially to young people, and his kindness became one of the customs of the Christmas season. Nicolaus Copernicus was also a man of the church. He was born in Poland in the year 1473, more than 1,100 years after the boy bishop lived in Asia Minor.

His name was originally Nikolaus Kopernik. He used the Latinized form of his name, Nicolaus Copernicus, in accordance with a custom among the scholars of his day. Scholars of all time have a custom of referring to a truly great man by his second name alone. To the world, Nicolaus Kopernik of Poland is known simply as Copernicus. He rates as one of history's great thinkers in the field of astronomy.

The ancient Greeks were great thinkers. They used logic and reason and applied a new system of math to their study of astronomy. Some of them arrived at the idea that the planets orbit the sun. However, the planetary orbits are oval, and the Greeks thought in terms of perfect circles. Their careful observations of the planets did not check with the idea of a central sun. The true picture of the solar system was later discarded, and for 1,400 years everyone believed that the sun circled the earth.

This was the theory of the great first-century astronomer, Ptolemy of Alexandria. Copernicus doubted Ptolemy's notion that the earth is the centre of the universe with all the stars and planets revolving around it. He used the charts of the skies gathered through many centuries to point out that another explanation might be equally true. The earth itself could be moving, in which case the heavenly bodies would only seem to be moving over the skies.

Copernicus grasped the difference between the real and apparent motion of the heavens. Some 50 years after his death, Galileo used the suggestions of Copernicus with his own observations and gave the world the true picture of the solar system.

Copernicus became a bishop and later a canon of a Polish cathedral. For a time he studied medicine in Italy, but he is remembered for his great interest in astronomy. In 1543, the year in which he died, he published a book titled "Concerning the Revolution of the Celestial Spheres." In this masterpiece Copernicus suggested that the heavenly bodies may not really move over the sky, but they would appear to do so if the earth itself were moving around and around on its axis.

will push for a city lottery, which makes more sense. Even that old foe of gambling, Fiorello LaGuardia, favored some kind of lottery . . . Joe Kipness, already planning eight months ahead, wants Marty Allen to play the star role in I Had a Ball when Buddy Hackett goes on vacation. Marty was offered the part originally, with his partner, Steve Rossi, to play the romantic singing lead, but they couldn't accept because of other commitments.

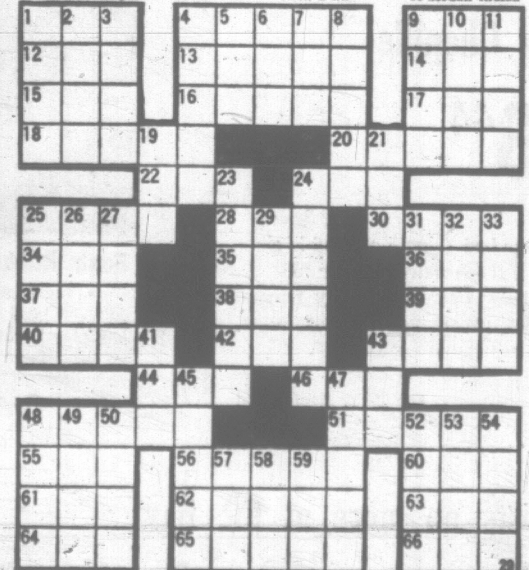

Since Sam Cooke was killed in California, stores in this area report a fabulous number of sales of his records. And he is understood to have recorded a large quantity of material that has been on the shelf but will be released because of the rush of fans to buy everything he ever made. It should be of some comfort to his widow that she will be taken care of financially, but Sam's friends in the music business still would like to know what the story was. They can't figure it out from what they read in the papers about his death.

The New Frontiersmen still in seats of influence in Washington are pushing Kenny O'Donnell, an ex-Kennedy aide, for J. Edgar Hoover's command post when the FBI chief eventually retires.

Is the teen-age market still affecting show business? Yes, indeedly-do. There was a startling example rushed through a big talent agency when the brass turned down an exceptionally fine singer. For only one reason. She was too old—28 . . . The Tony Richardson (he directed the great movie Tom Jones among other contributions to the world of illusion) are expecting a baby . . . The mastermind of that English train heist, who broke jail a few months ago, has been traced to Canada, and the Mounties always get their man, so it's probably just a question of a short time and he'll be nabbed.

Tide-in-the-Sky Theory New Rain Forecast Method

By FRANK CAREY
MONTREAL (AP)—New evidence was reported today that capricious "tides" in the atmosphere—caused by the same moon and sun which produce oceanic tides—may affect the world's weather.

Meteorologist Glenn W. Brier of the U.S. weather bureau told about it in a report to the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He and meteorologist Max A. Woodbury of New York University stressed that their concept—even if definitely proved—could not be expected to act as a reliable predictor of day-to-day rainfall.

But the scientists said the concept could well offer a means of forecasting periods of exceptionally heavy rainfall, at least in the United States.

Brier indicated that all the evidence suggests that, in the atmosphere, there are tides—within tides. Each of three listed by him depends upon the relative positions of the sun, moon and earth in a given month of slightly over 29 days. The atmospheric tides—caused principally by gravitational forces, but relative pipe-squeaks in energy when compared with oceanic tidal forces—shape up something like this:

1. A main one that apparently peaks near the middle of the first and third weeks of the lunar month—especially on the third to fifth days after both the "new" and "full" moons, when the sun, moon and earth are lined up on a straight line. (The studies showed there is a marked tendency for extreme precipitation to occur in North America at those times.)

2. A lesser force that apparently acts when the moon's individual tidal forces are at a maximum at the particular time in a "solar day" most favorable for precipitation on earth.

(The most favorable time for rainfall for the United States as a whole is about 3 a.m. solar time, with 5 p.m. as runner-up, so, if the moon is in the right position, rain would be even more likely.)
3. Still another lunar-solar tidal relationship that appears to be associated especially with relatively rare, exceptionally heavy rainfall.

POLARIS SUBMARINE SAILS CHINA COAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Navy Polaris submarine now is plying the seas off the Asia mainland within rocket range of China.

The defence department has confirmed that the submarine Daniel Boone has been deployed in the far-western Pacific.

The Boone's 16 nuclear-tipped missiles, which have a range of 1,800 miles, could reach half of China.

Six other Polaris submarines are expected to join the Boone.

The deployment of the Boone three months after China's first nuclear detonation is coincidental, a navy spokesman said.

ROBINS, THRUSHES FLEE VANCOUVER COLD, AUDUBON COUNTERS REPORT

Snow-Free City Takes Weather-Beaten Mainland Birds Under Its Wing

The annual bird count in Victoria Sunday turned up 125 species, second highest number recorded.

The count was two less than last year, which was a record both for Victoria and for the country as a whole.

About 45 members of the Victoria Natural History Society split up into teams and recorded all birds seen between dawn and dusk.

About 50,000 birds were counted, roughly the same as last year, said co-ordinator David Stirling. Robins and varied thrushes were particularly numerous, especially where there are old apples and hawthorn berries. "What this means is that the Vancouver area was frozen up, and most of them came to Victoria to weather the storm," said Mr. Stirling. A large percentage of birds counted were sea birds or water fowl.

Some summer birds such as goldfinches, cowbirds and bluebirds were seen. An orange-crowned warbler and a fulmar were counted.

The fulmar is a bird of the high seas not usually found close to shore.

"It is hard to say why it was close to shore," said Mr. Stirling. "There may have been a storm, or lack of food or it may have been injured."

The count, first done officially here in 1958, encompassed a 15-mile diameter circle from Island View Beach to Oak Bay and Cordova Bay to Witty's Lagoon. The count is part of an international program involving 15,000 members of the Audubon Society in Canada and the U.S. The Christmas census is conducted between Dec. 25 and Jan. 2 and indicates bird population trends and migration patterns. The counts started in 1900.

ONLY 362 days to Christmas... don't be caught napping in 1965. That was the scene in a downtown city street this morning as hundreds flocked to buy next year's Christmas cards and wrapping paper. Reason for the rush was a post-Christmas sale, offering batches of cards at give-away prices. Other Christmas items are also being offered cheap. So don't delay. Do your Christmas shopping now. By tomorrow there'll only be 361 days to go. (Times photo)

Three inches of new snow, 75 inches of old; temperature 19 degrees; snowing. Conditions good; three tows running. Road clear to bottom of K-30, chains required. One snowmobile running.

FOR NEW YEAR

Traditional Regal Fete Scheduled

More than 1,500 male British Columbians are expected to attend the traditional New Year's Day reception at Government House.

His Honor Lieutenant Governor George Pearkes will receive callers from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and aldermen of the city council of Victoria will hold their customary reception from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. at City Hall. Guests should enter through the Pandora Street entrance.

Bishop Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, will receive at his residence, 740 View Street, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt and his council will receive visitors at the Municipal Hall from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

HMCS Naden wardroom will receive from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.; the chiefs' mess from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; the petty officers' mess from noon to 1 p.m.

OTHER PARTIES

First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Work Point Barracks, officers' and sergeants' messes, 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Fifth (British Columbia) Independent Medium Battery, Royal Regiment of Canadian Artillery, officers' mess, Bay Street Armory, 10 a.m. to noon.

Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), officers' mess 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; sergeants' mess from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Christmas Tour For Blind Tonight

Fifty blind persons will be taken on a tour of the Christmas lights tonight by the South Van Isle Lions Club.

Some of the blind persons can distinguish colors and each will be escorted, said a Lions official. It was hoped to make the tour an annual affair.

The tour leaves at 7 p.m. and should last about two hours. Food and coffee will be served after the tour.

CAR ROLLED DRIVER HURT

An elderly man was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital today with a fracture of the left arm after his car was rolled on its side when in collision with another at Quadra and Burdett.

City police have not yet released the names of the drivers involved. The fire department was called to the scene to wash away gasoline which spilled from the overturned car.

ZONING PLAN

Third Hearing Jan. 12 In N. Saanich

Third public hearing on the controversial North Saanich zoning plan was set today for Jan. 12.

Municipal affairs department officials scheduled it for 8 p.m. in North Saanich High School and it is expected to draw a large crowd.

The third session originally had been set for Dec. 18 but had to be cancelled due to adverse weather.

The first two sessions—held in the Legislative Buildings and in North Saanich High School Dec. 17—drew a large number of oral and written briefs—most of them favoring the Capital Region Planning Board's proposed zoning boundaries for the unorganized territory.

The sessions are being conducted by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell who will have to decide whether or not the CRPB plan will be adopted officially.

ONLY ANSWER, SAYS MARINA OPERATOR

By RON SUDLOW

Sports fishing in Victoria is in the dark ages compared to United States methods, says Oak Bay Marina operator Bob Wright.

The accepted method of fishing these waters is trolling for salmon with frozen bait or lures.

"These methods produced well up to four years ago," said Mr. Wright. "But increased commercial pressures—net fishing in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and early harvests by sports and commercial trollers of resident salmon stocks—have made fish harder and harder to get."

"And the last three years have been the poorest on record for sports catches."

A visit to California has convinced Mr. Wright party boat fishing with live bait is the answer. He will put one into operation here next year.

The party boat or drift fishing method uses tides, wind and live bait to provide trolling action.

And anglers won't be going after just salmon.

School Board Head Ready To Step Down

A new chairman will rap the gavel when Greater Victoria school board holds its 1965 inaugural meeting Jan. 4 in Craigdarroch Castle.

Chairman for the past three years, Mrs. A. B. Thompson said today she would step down to allow trustees to elect a new chairman among themselves.

Although she found the job rewarding, "it takes a tremendous amount of time," she said. Besides, she has given it three years and a normal term as chairman is one year.

Mrs. Thompson said there are several other members of the board fitted to assume the role of chairman.

Trustee John Porteous, a member for Victoria, is vice-chairman this year.

COMMITTEE HEADS

First job of a new chairman is to appoint committee heads for the year, enabling committees to meet before the regular board meeting, in this case Jan. 18.

A full complement of trustees is not expected to be present for the inaugural meeting. Nobody ran for a recent seat in the December elections.

The new man will come from Saanich rather than Victoria, bringing area representation to three each from Victoria and Saanich, two from Oak Bay and one from Esquimalt.

Forecast: We'll Shiver 'n' Shake The New Year In

By TERRY IZZARD

Father Time would do well to forget his scythe and egg-timer this year.

His best bet would be a broom and shovel.

Snow... cold... no change... that's all Victoria weatherman William Mackie can promise for the New Year.

From his snow-capped perch on Gonzales Hill today, he predicted: "Mostly cloudy, some snow showers, remaining cold."

"JUST AS COLD" And he said: "The way things are going the New Year looks like coming in just as cold."

Highest temperatures for the next few days look like being 35 degrees, while at night the thermometer will sink to freezing or just below.

Over Christmas Victoria escaped the snowy fate experienced by neighboring cities on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

While early risers here were met this morning by bright sunshine, Duncan, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and all points north were suffering further snow storms.

In Port Alberni it has now reached a depth of nearly 18 inches.

And while most main roads were being kept clear, the road to Tofino was finally made impassable.

For motorists everywhere, except the Greater Victoria area, the picture was the same... snow tires or chains.

MORE ON MALAHAT Overnight another two inches fell on the Malahat, making driving treacherous without chains.

Below-average temperatures gave little hope of a thaw in the near future.

Nanaimo is still buried under 13 inches while Courtenay and Comox report nine inches.

Flying at RCAF Comox is still restricted to important missions only.

Over the weekend RCMP detachments in the main centres reported a rash of minor accidents. Most were blamed on icy and slushy road conditions.

There were no serious injuries. DEER HUNGRY In the Cowichan Valley, Mesachie Lake and Honeymoon Bay areas, half-starved deer have invaded residential properties in search of food.

One person reported spotting a cougar on the road four miles east of Lake Cowichan.

One bright note is the chance of a few sunny periods Tuesday.

But Mr. Mackie warned: "If it gets brighter, it will also get colder."

Licence Taken Away David Earl Craig, 3110 Irma, today was fined $300 and lost his licence after pleading guilty in city police court to impaired driving.

Court was told he collided with a parked car at 1:15 a.m. Christmas Day, causing an estimated $200 damage to each car.

A breathalyzer test showed a .21 reading.

They immediately think of Campbell River. "A fishing trip will encourage tourists to spend an extra day in Victoria and that puts money into everybody's pockets," Mr. Wright said.

for 100 days next tourist season. It will operate in waters adjacent to Oak Bay. "With this boat, we hope to put Victoria on the fishing map. Tourists bypass us if they want to go fishing

"Midwesterners and prairie people vacationing here just want to catch a fish when they go out."

The drift fishing method will also be effective against school salmon such as coho and pinks.

$25,000 CONVERSION Mr. Wright's drift fishing boat is now entering final stages of its $25,000 conversion from the RCN torpedo recovery boat HMCS Lakewood. Work is being done at Patricia Bay.

It will retain the navy name as a charter craft. "It is designed to fit our needs. It has a big beam with little wheelhouse space and lots of deck," Mr. Wright said.

40 PER TRIP The craft will be licensed under the Canadian Steamship Inspection Service and carry up to 40 people per trip on its four trips daily

LT.-COL. ELLIOT

New Colonel Appointed For QORs

A switch in the command of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, stationed at Work Point Barracks, was announced today.

Lt.-Col. H. C. F. Elliot, 43, who has commanded the battalion for three years, has been appointed chief staff officer of the Canadian Army's eastern Ontario area at Kingston, Ont.

Lt.-Col. C. L. Kirby, 40, staff officer with the army's directorate of international operations, Ottawa, will take over command of the Queen's Own Rifles here.

JAN. 23 PARADE

A change-over parade will take place on the parade square at Work Point Barracks on the morning of Jan. 22. It will be both a greeting to the new commanding officer and a farewell to Col. Elliot.

Lt. Col. Kirby, a native of Calgary, has been stationed in Ottawa for the past three years.

As staff officer with the directorate of international operations, he has been largely concerned with air movements of Canadian troops abroad.

Swearing In For Aldermen Set Monday

A Supreme Court ceremony to swear in new aldermen and Victoria school trustees is set for next Monday morning, followed by inaugural meetings afternoon and evening.

Mr. Justice Robert A. B. Wootton will administer oaths of office at 10 a.m. in Supreme Court Chambers to newly-elected Clyde Savage and three re-elected aldermen, A. W. Toome, Austin Curtis and Cecil Parrott.

Re-elected school trustee Lloyd Clarkson will also take the oath.

First 1965 meeting of city council will be at 2 p.m. Monday and for school trustees the inaugural will be at 8 p.m. The mayor's inaugural address will be a week later, scheduled for a meeting of council Jan. 11.

As with his last New Year's speech, Mayor R. B. Wilson finds the time required to prepare it fails to meet the statutory deadline for the first meeting of the year.

Citizens Given Warning

Greater Victoria police departments today warned homeowners to be on their guard because of an upsurge of house break-ins this month.

So far in December a total of 12 house burglaries have been reported to police in the city, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Police say this is far above normal.

Esquimalt hasn't had any this month "but we've been very fortunate," Police Chief James Smart said.

Police suspect the same person or persons are responsible for the thefts.

Most of the break-ins occur between 6 and 9 p.m. when people are visiting during the holiday season.

SAME METHOD

"They ride around in a car and look for a house in complete darkness, then ring the doorbell, and enter through a back window or door."

"People should leave their lights on when they go out. They should arrange with a neighbor to keep an eye on their place if they are going out at this time of year."

"They should also watch for phone calls when the other party hangs up and contact police with information on anything that looks suspicious," he said.

Det. Insp. Harry Mercer of city police said people should watch for anyone who looks suspicious. One of the problems is people don't look suspicious between 6 and 8 in the evening, he said.

IN FAIRFIELD

Det.-Sgt. Norman Bath added most of the city's 20 break-ins this month have occurred in the Fairfield district.

Four more break-ins occurred over the weekend.

Miss Margaret Fletcher, 1212 St. Charles St., reported a transistor radio valued at $39.95 was missing.

B. F. Crump, 330 Masters, had his home broken into but only a watch was stolen although cash was left in plain view.

Entry was gained by kicking out a rear basement window. Thieves forced a sliding ground-level window overnight Saturday and stole $30 in cash from the home of Herbert Roberson, 313 Windemere Pl., and a break-in was discovered at 1647 Hollywood Cres., but nothing was reported missing.

Ask The Times

Q. When did the City of Vancouver first become authorized to hold Sunday sports charging admission? W.W.A.

A. Dec. 14, 1955, when a referendum authorized commercial Sunday sports between the hours of 1 and 6 p.m. Vote was 36,051 to 36,125. A simple majority was all that was necessary.

Q. In lowering temperatures, which would survive the longest—a warm-blooded animal or a cold-blooded animal? B.M.H.

A. The answer to this depends on the insulation of the animals and their food reserves in their body.

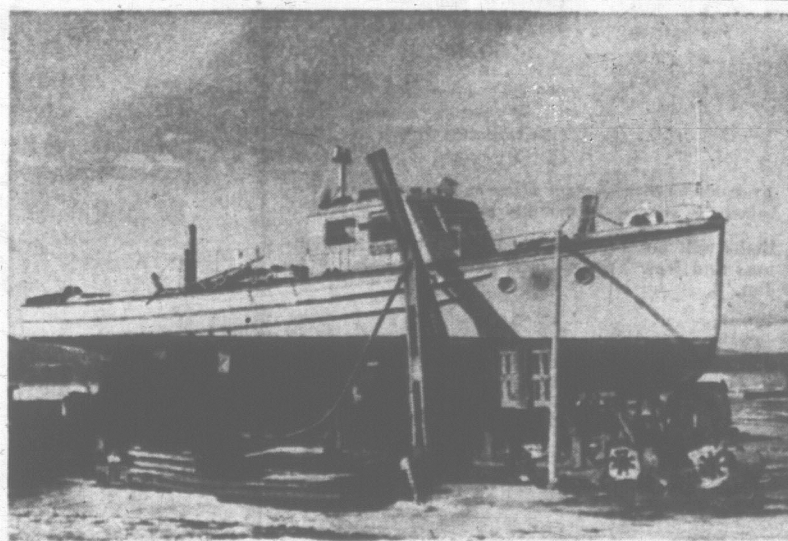

Generally, warm-blooded animals will survive under sub-freezing temperatures if insulation and food reserves are sufficient as is the case of many Arctic animals.

But cold-blooded animals—fish and reptiles—would die if exposed to sub-freezing temperatures.

However, if internal body temperatures were lowered, cold-blooded animals would live longest.

DEAR ABBY...

Sit Out the Siege!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been best friends with the couple next door for years. We play bridge together, have taken trips together and our children play together. One night (a few weeks ago) the husband went to bed early, so his wife came over to watch TV with us. She went home around midnight, but forgot her house key and was locked out. Her husband, being a very sound sleeper, didn't hear the doorbell. She came over to our bedroom window (not wishing to awaken our children by ringing our doorbell), and shouted up to us to help her get into her house. My husband put on his bathrobe and went outside to try to find an open window in their house while I kept ringing their phone, hoping to wake up her husband. I finally succeeded and my husband was home in five minutes.

One of the neighbors must have seen my friend under our bedroom window, and watched my husband join her in his bathrobe, and now we find ourselves in the middle of a big scandal! Some say we've been switching mates for years. Others say this woman is trying to break up my home. Anyway, the talk is all over town and we are afraid our children might hear it from their playmates. I can't go up and down the streets yelling it isn't true. What can we do? We can't all leave town. We own our homes, our husbands' jobs are here, and we can't afford to move.

INNOCENT VICTIM
DEAR INNOCENT: Don't do anything. If you could afford to leave town, the move would only make you appear guilty. Worth while people neither believe gossip nor spread it. And the most wholehearted denial has yet to still one vicious tongue. Stay where you are and keep your sense of humor.

DEAR ABBY: I am disgusted with women. My husband plays with a well-known band. Women call him up and write to him from all over the country. Some of them are old enough to be his mother. I often travel with my husband and have actually seen women follow him to the door of the men's room! Any time now I expect to see one go in after him. Whatever happened to decent women?

LISA
DEAR LISA: Decent women are still with us, so don't judge the entire sex by the women you've seen chasing your husband. Musicians are constantly being pursued by man-hungry women, but those who don't want to be bothered need only to ignore the glances, messages

TODAY'S RECIPE

CURRIED TUNA RICE CASSEROLE

Quarter cup butter, 1/2 cup canned tomato pulp or fresh sliced tomatoes, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, few drops tabasco sauce, pinch of garlic powder, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 5 tablespoons flour, 3 cups milk, 2 (7-ounce) cans tuna fish, drained and flaked, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 2 tablespoons butter, melted, 3 cups cooked rice (1 cup regular or 1 1/2 cups quick cooking), 1/2 (cup lightly crushed rice cereal).
Butter a 2-quart casserole. Preheat oven to 350°F. Melt the 1/2 cup butter in a saucepan. Add tomatoes, Worcestershire sauce, tabasco sauce, garlic powder, paprika, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Blend in flour. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until smoothly thickened. Add tuna and heat through. Meanwhile add curry to the 2 tablespoons melted butter, pour over cooked rice and toss together lightly. Layer tuna mixture and rice in prepared casserole. Top with crushed rice cereal. Bake in preheated oven 20 minutes.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother of the 17-year-old boy, who tried to tell her that he should be allowed to stay out until midnight every night because "all his friends" could, fascinated me. I am the mother of five sons. My eldest (now married) tried the same stunt with me. I asked him for the names of the boys who had all the privileges he wanted and I telephoned their mothers in front of him. It turned out that all the boys were using the same story. They said OUR son had all the privileges THEY wanted. The other mothers were glad I called. Once my son learned that Mother could not be fooled, he quit trying.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Make the King of Your Castle Dress the Part

By PENNY SAVER

With the New Year holiday approaching, every woman will like her husband to dress like the king of the household he rules. You can make your husband a "stand-out" at any parties or gatherings by buying him—or letting him buy—the proper outfits for the occasion.

If the affair in question is not strictly formal, one of the new, comfortable white shirts will make him look "Bond Street" tailored while feeling at ease.

The shirts Penny found are part of the new, soft-collar look for spring. The slim tapered line appears to remove inches from a somewhat stocky frame and the collar won't scratch or irritate.

But the best thing about this terylene and cotton blend shirt is the new collar fastener! A dome fastener, attached to the inner facing of the shirt front prevents bulkiness at the neck, and when the tie is loosened, the neckline expands to provide ease and comfort, yet leaves the look of being trim and well-dressed.

Completely "wash and wear," this shirt sells for $6.95.

Add a glittering highlight to a man's formal attire by giving him a set of original and unique cuff-links. Aurora borealis, semi-precious stones and "differently" wrought metal are now making their appearance in men's fashions.

Jade, the stone of good fortune, is a particularly handsome accent to dinner wear. I discovered a beautiful set of links and tie bar in an uneven octagonal shape, set in thick gold. Price is $7.50.

Mother-of-pearl, too, is another favorite this year. One popular style is set in a rough, rectangular shape with rounded corners, selling at $5.

Here's a little tip for the man who will be going to a more casual affair. (It's also a good idea for your spring wardrobe, too.) Corduroy jackets, tailor-finished and completely lined with heavy rayon, are wonderful for casual comfort. Pockets are accented with smart leather trim. Jackets come in black, brown, beige and logan green, and are priced at $29, $39 and $49.

Liven up the New Year by dressing for it. Penny's number is 382-3131.

People Who Don't Speak Two Languages Seen as 'Obsolete'

OTTAWA (CP) — Barbara Ward, noted British economist and commentator on international affairs, says Canadians should start trying to make their children bilingual as soon as possible.

In an interview here during a Canadian lecture tour, Miss Ward said: "I think the thing that would solve the French-Canadian nationalism problem best would be to set up bilingual schools all over Canada."

"In the modern world, people who cannot speak at least two languages are obsolete," Miss Ward said. Canada is "a very creditable" middle power in the world but could gain even more status if all its people were bilingual. "My parents compelled me to go to Paris and learn to speak French and now I'm very glad I did."

The British lecturer said it is most encouraging that English-Canadians are at last beginning to realize the problems of the French minority.

During earlier visits to Canada, she said she had been "shocked" to see how little French influence there was at McGill University in Montreal — "right in the heart of a French-Canadian city."

Travel and greatly extended language training could help the cause of peace all over the world, said Miss Ward.

'At Home'

There will be 40 guests on New Year's Day when Mr. and Mrs. J. Courtney Haddock entertain at an "at home" in their Crescent Road home. During the holidays, the couple had as guests, Mrs. W. E. Haddock, Mr. Haddock's mother, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Haddock, all of Vancouver. The visitors are returning to their homes today.

House Guests

Cpl. E. D. Tack and Mrs. Tack are here for the holiday season and are house guests of Mrs. Tack's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Eaton of Inlet Avenue. Before returning to their home in Edmonton, Cpl. and Mrs. Tack will travel to Haney, B.C., to visit Mrs. Tack's brother, Mr. Vic Eaton and his family.

Holiday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Colin Scobie and their family entertained at a holiday party Friday, in their Cadboro Bay Road home. Guests included Mrs. Scobie's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Wille, and their children, Wendy and Daryl Jr., all of Hamilton, Ont. The Willes are presently spending the holiday season with Mr. Wille's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Wille, in their Colquitz Avenue home. Other guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. J. Furiak of Kamloops, B.C., who are spending the holidays with Mrs. Furiak's sister, Mrs. N. Ormond, in her Richmond Road home.

Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. J. Smith entertained at a wine-tasting party in their home on Upper Terrace on Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m. There were 90 guests.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Duffus returned to their home in Vancouver, Saturday, after spending the holiday weekend with their son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. John Duffus in their Atkins Road home.

Fabric Brooch Highlights Gown Chosen by Lynne Marie Burger

A street-length sheath-style gown of white satin brocade, fashioned with a scooped neckline and long lily point sleeves, was worn by Lynne Marie Burger on Wednesday afternoon when she exchanged marriage vows with Mark John Andrews in a quiet ceremony in the Legislative Buildings.

Her shoulder-length veil mistletoe from a white satin rose headpiece. For "something old" she chose a brooch made of fabric from her paternal grandmother's wedding gown. White roses and holly formed the cascade bouquet.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burger, 1855 Emery Place, Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Andrews of Grand Falls, Nfld. Mr. Burger gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Zack Konkin was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a sheath-style gown of midnight blue satin with a toning rose headpiece trimmed with veiling. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and holly. Mr. Konkin, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. A three-tier wedding cake, surrounded with white tulle and sprigs of holly, centred the head table at a family dinner that followed at the Oak Bay Marina. Arrangements of white candles and red and white chrysanthemums completed the decorations.

Following the dinner, an open house was held in the home of the bride's parents. On return from a honeymoon trip up-island, the newlyweds will live in Vancouver. For travelling, the bride wore a blue double-knit suit accented with silver beige coat, blue feather hat and black accessories. Deep pink roses were in her corsage.

Wife of British Prime Minister Intimidated by Social Functions

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Harold Wilson is a self-confessed suburbanite obliged to live in the limelight at a famous address—10 Downing Street—because she is the prime minister's wife. "I find large social gatherings where I don't know many people rather intimidating, but I shall do my best," Mrs. Wilson has told her friends. "I like dressing. But to be dolled up all the time would drive me mad."

Bride Wears Italian Suit

Rev. E. Laura Butler officiated at the recent ceremony in Metropolitan United Church that united Mrs. Dorothy Vernon Woodward and Mr. H. S. (Bunny) Hum.

Soloist, Mrs. Grace Hanning, sang "Through the Years" and the "Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony. Given in marriage by her younger son, Jack Woodward, the bride was lovely in a pale blue silvered Italian knit suit accented with a white tulle hat and white accessories. She carried a white Bible topped with phalaenopsis orchids, feathered chrysanthemums and white streamers.

Maid of honor, Miss Jacqueline Nichols, the bride's niece, wore a bluish pink Italian knit suit and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

David Hum was best man for his father and guests were ushered to their pews by Kenneth Hum, the groom's younger son, and Gerald Cruickshank.

Following the ceremony, a family reception was held in the new home of the couple. Bert Hebdon proposed the toast to their happiness.

After a honeymoon trip in Honolulu, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

When she married Harold Wilson, a young professor of economics at Oxford—on New Year's Day in 1940—she thought she was heading for a quiet future in academic surroundings. But Harold was ambitious, went into politics, rose high in Labor party ranks, and became prime minister last October.

"I have always claimed he married me under false pretences," Mrs. Wilson says, noting her progress from a professor's wife to what she calls a Westminster widow.

She doesn't much care for politics herself. And she hates political arguments.

"I don't like people shouting at each other," she says.

But she has dutifully attended every Labor party conference since 1945, though she has never made a political speech. She has opened countless bazaars and garden parties with a non-political word or two.

"My place is to listen," she says. "I rarely give advice. I'm useful. I don't know about economics, but I can ask Harold naive questions that anyone else would think too obvious and it's a help to him."

Of the sudden change in October which swept her into No. 10 Downing Street, Mrs. Wilson commented:

"I shall do everything I can—short of neglecting the children."

BOYS COME FIRST

She made up her mind long ago that Robin, now 20 and a student of economics, and Giles, a 15-year-old schoolboy, must have priority in her life.

"You have to decide," she says. "Either you go right in with your husband, into all the activities of politics and put your children in boarding school, or you have to make an agreed decision to concentrate on your home and children."

She chose the latter. When the time came, she refused to move to Downing Street until Giles' school vacation. She did not want the change to upset his schooling.

She tackled her new job in a rather typical way by dismissing Mrs. Alice Green, the cook at 10 Downing Street, with a kindly letter of thanks and the intimation she would be cooking for the prime minister herself. Mrs. Green had asked for three more staff in the kitchen.

"Goodness knows how Mrs. Wilson will manage to cook and be the prime minister's wife," said Mrs. Green.

HANDLED BY STAFF

But Mrs. Wilson is not worried. Official entertaining is handled by a staff from the government's hospitality department. After preparing breakfast for her husband and son there is nothing for Mrs. Wilson to do until the evening meal. There is only herself for lunch.

Actually the Wilsons' private apartment on the top floor, way above the cabinet room and offices, is about the same size as their own home.

The family cat, Nero, a Siamese, is usually on the hearth in the bedroom near the prime minister's slippers.

Nearby is a small music room. Giles plays the harmonium, the prime minister plays the recorder, and the whole family likes a hymn-singing session on Sunday evenings. Mrs. Wilson used to sing in the church choir at Hampstead and hopes to do so again.

Gladys Wilson, 48, the same age as her husband, is the daughter of Rev. Daniel Baldwin, a Congregationalist minister. She wears only a touch of lipstick and is fresh-complexioned with natural blonde hair and cornflower blue eyes.

She speaks just a little French. She likes the odd glass of sherry. She smokes about one cigarette a week. She doesn't drive a car. Harold always drove. Now, of course, the Wilsons have an official chauffeur.

Before her marriage Mrs. Wilson worked as a shorthand typist.

Best-Dressed List Seen as Symbolic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those annual best-dressed lists serve one healthy purpose—they stimulate fashion. But they also skip a lot of the deserving, says one woman named so often to the lists she finally was elevated to the Hall of Fame and taken out of the running.

Aline Griffith, the Countess of Quintinilla of Madrid, so sums up the annual salute to style. "There are thousands of women who are very elegant and eligible for the list," said the brunette beauty from Pearl River, N.Y., who married Spanish nobility shortly after the Second World War. She had been sent to Spain on a mission for the U.S. Office of Special Services (OSS).

"They're just far from the scene and so are never seen," said the countess.

"I find the list more of a symbol, to encourage women all over the world to fashion. The women cited have to live up to it, but I think this is a healthy thing—to keep them on their toes."

IN HALL OF FAME

In 1962, the countess was moved on up to the Hall of Fame alongside such best-dressed personalities as the Duchess of Windsor, Mrs. William Paley and Princess Grace of Monaco, to leave space for new faces.

The newest international list, compiled from ballots circulated largely through the fashion world, is due in early January.

Her husband was glad to see her "retired," she smiled, because the clothing bill would be less.

The countess was a regular on the lists although she declares herself always has been a "small" wardrobe.

"Maybe four suits, a couple of them black, for we wear lots of black in Spain, two or three black dresses, several long evening dresses."

"I do have a variety of sports and country clothes because we do a lot of hunting and riding in Spain. I'm usually in skirt and sweater for the day, otherwise. "I think if a woman has too many clothes, she doesn't put them together so well. "If I like a dress, I don't hesitate to wear it over and over. But I do think that to be chic, your clothes have to be immaculate."

The countess said most of her clothes are designed by Pedro Rodriguez of Madrid—she does not cater to Paris labels.

Chic and elegance can be cultivated, she maintained, no matter what the clothing budget.

LINE AND COLOR

"Study line and color," she said, "and you learn unconsciously year after year. Maybe that's why the older women usually are the elegant ones; they've learned that quality and taste are beyond the exaggerated."

"The elegant woman never stands out in the crowd," she said. "See her time and time again and she does everything with perfection."

Countess Quintinilla's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith, still live in Pearl River and she and her husband, Luis, visit them each time they return to the United States.

This last trip, however, they'd left behind their three sons—Alvaro, 15, Luis, 14, and Miguel, 12.

I talked with the couple at the Wally Findlay Art Galleries where the countess was having an exhibit of his paintings. He has painted, and collected art, since childhood and it's his signature also on the mural at the "top of the fair" of the New York World's Fair.

The countess is the writer in the family. She's putting together her second book, a novel built on her experiences in espionage. Her first, "The Earth Rests Lightly" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston), tells of her tracing the history of Pascalete in southern Spain, the palace and grounds which have been in the count's family for 700 years.

SPADEA DESIGNER PATTERN IN AID OF MATERNITY HOSPITAL

Hovering over a slender slip of skirt is one of the smartest pullover tops to appear on this season's fashion scene. For comfortable easy wear, Herbert Sondheim designed the overblouse without a restrictive line, acknowledging the waist only by a bow-tied strip of narrow bias. Matching contrast trim outlines the neck, yoke. For an exciting finish, the lower edge takes a sharp upward curve then is squared off a step higher across the front. Choose lightweight wool, jerseys, plain or printed rayons, cottons or silks, shantung or linen. Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear sizes produce a better fit. See chart for size best for you.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Good Conversationalists Use You for Subjects

Letters and telegrams are word, though less suspected. Every year I bring my readers a few old thoughts for the New Year and this is one of three. I do not know to whom I should give credit for this quotation but some wise person said, "Gossips talk to you about others, bores talk to you about themselves and good conversationalists talk to you about yourself."

There's a lot of truth in that! Just the other night I said to my husband, "Oh, there was something I wanted to tell you, but I can't think what it was! It was VERY interesting. Now I remember, and of course it is interesting. It is about me."

At Matson Lodge

The Women's Auxiliary to the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge sponsored a holiday party for the residents recently. The two lounges were gay with holly and two decorated trees. Bill Edgington acted as Santa Claus, distributing boxes of chocolates. Auxiliary members led the singing of carols and popular songs. Al Smith was at the piano. Refreshments were served.

IN AID OF MATERNITY HOSPITAL

Shooting Sisters Raise Fund for Mission

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (Reuters)—Three Roman Catholic mission sisters in the desolate Gulf District of Papua are shooting crocodiles to earn money for a desperately needed maternity hospital.

The sisters decided to take up shooting in the sluggish Brown River surrounding their mission after they found money was coming in too slowly from the sale of the skins of crocodiles bought from the local villagers.

Because of the high death rate in the primitive villages near the tiny airstrip of Terapo, about 120 miles northwest of here, the nuns vowed to raise $2,240 to set up hygienic facilities for delivering babies.

"There were about 109 births in our area last year," said Sister Joseph-Mary from Brisbane, Australia, "but only 18 babies were delivered in hospital." Because of this the death rate was high, compounded by native suspicion of multiple births and lack of protein foods.

So far, Sister Joseph-Mary is the only one who has shouldered a gun—"And I'm not very good at it." Sister Mary-Paul of France and Sister Mary-Melicia of Belgium have not yet learned. They belong to the French order of the Daughters of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart.

HUNT FROM LAUNCH

Sister Joseph-Mary says she has travelled more than 200 miles around the swamps and rivers aboard the mission's new 18-foot launch. The others man the engine while she watches for crocodiles.

They started in the crocodile business by buying small animals from the villagers, skinning and curing them themselves in off-duty hours and stuffing them with waste sawdust from a sawmill.

Skins are also provided by the brothers of the order on the station, who shoot crocodiles at night from dugout canoes.

The story of the shooting sisters came to light after the nuns nursed a British novelist, Richard Pape, back to health when he became victim to a severe tropical infection while touring the remote Gulf District.

Apart from their medical and hunting duties, the nuns also teach native children at the station's boarding school.

A hospital is badly needed so that adequate care may be given to villagers who become seriously ill. At present they must make a canoe journey to the nearest hospital at Kukipi or be flown to Port Moresby.

SEW SIMPLE

WITH Eunice Farmer

New Year Greetings

To All My Readers

Dear Readers:

Once again it's time for me to wish you the most exciting and happiest New Year ever!

It's also a time to thank you for your letters, loyalty and enthusiasm about Sew Simple.

Dear Eunice:

Every time I decide to make an overblouse, I run my legs off trying to find a zipper the right length. Besides, you have to be an acrobat to get one fastened at the back—if you are lucky enough to find one. What's the answer?

Mrs. M.M.

Dear Mrs. M.M.:

Many of the newest overblouses on expensive clothes have eliminated the separating-type zipper. You may do that, too.

Measure from the neckline to within two or three inches of the finished hem, and buy a light-weight neck-opening zipper. You will finish the lower edge of your overblouse with a standard closed seam and insert the zipper as you would any neck-line zipper.

You'll be delighted with the smooth, finished appearance of your overblouse and the long zipper will still leave enough room to make it comparatively easy to put-on and take off.

What a Night At the Opera!

PARMA, Italy (UPI)—Insults and inkpots flew across the footlights Sunday night at the opening performance of Verdi's opera "Masked Ball."

American baritone Cornell MacNeill stalked from the stage in the middle of the third act. "Basta, Cretini" (enough, you Cretins) MacNeill shouted to his audience. Moments later the American singer scuffled with the opera house director backstage.

The furore was set off by the opera-goers—the most vocal and critical audience in all of Italy. Their imprecations reached the ears of the performers for the first note of the opera.

At the beginning of the third act, a chorus of "The orchestra is bad" came from the audience. The first clarinetist promptly walked out.

Shortly afterward, MacNeill departed.

"It was like singing in the Colosseum," he said today.

Varying accounts emerged of what happened backstage. MacNeill announced that he was considering filing suit against Giuseppe Negri, the opera house director, for "hitting me in the face while my son Walter was holding me by the arms."

The director said he approached MacNeill and "asked him repeatedly to stay, and tried to keep him there in a friendly way, but the singer's son hit me on the arm to make me let his father go."

"MacNeill," Negri continued, "in the throes of anger, began kicking and punching, even his son was trying to calm him without success."

MacNeill indicated he might be willing to appear tonight.

But the opera house management announced that Mario Zanasi had been signed for the baritone role.

HOME GARDEN Spray Peach Tree Before Year Ends

By JACK BEASTALL
After the festivities of Christmas one is usually looking for some little job to do in the garden with not too much effort or planning, just something a wee bit different to sitting, talking and eating.

There is one job which is best completed before the old year ends, and that is the spraying of the peach tree.

Peach blossoms come out quite early, much earlier than apples and pears, therefore we try to get the strong winter spray applied before the buds are advanced enough to be damaged.

Lime-sulphur has long been the spray for this job and is still effective for free standing trees, but trained trees against the wall of a house need one of the newer sprays that will not stain.

Either obtain an eight or ten-foot wand, or use a ladder. Climb as high as necessary to spray all around every twig. On trained trees remember that the part against the wall is where most disease spores will be hiding.

Do a good job now, and again before the end of January, and your peach troubles will be lessened considerably.

To control peach leaf curl the spraying must be thoroughly done. It is no use standing on the ground with a three-foot spray wand expecting to reach the top of a 15-foot tree.

TV Seen As Assist To School Progress

MONTREAL (CP)—Despite parental fears, television viewing by youngsters appears to have little bad effect on their school work, an Illinois researcher reported Sunday.

Paul Witty, a professor at Northwestern University, said there even is some evidence that "heavy" viewers get slightly better school grades.

In a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in session here, Witty said about 25 per cent of elementary and high school pupils in Chicago reported in 1964 that TV presentations "had led them to read certain books" they might otherwise have ignored.

Witty suggested it is ironic that many parents are so worried about their children watching TV, since mother and father usually are before the set more often than the kids.

Witty said surveys indicate that parents average about 21 hours a week of TV viewing, compared with about 20 for elementary school children, and 12 for high school students.

Actor Arrested As Policeman Dragged By Car

NEW YORK (AP)—An unemployed actor was arrested Sunday in connection with a midtown traffic incident that led to the fatal shooting of a pedestrian.

Edward Seamon, 32, was accused of driving a car that dragged Policeman Patrick Crowe a block Saturday.

The policeman fired two warning shots in the air, then two at the car. One of the bullets hit and killed Julius Ofsey, 64, of Brooklyn.

Seamon was held on charges of felonious assault and leaving the scene of the accident.

Crowe had ordered a car to the curb, then reached through a window to take the ignition key. The driver stepped on the gas, dragging Crowe a block before he got his arm free.

Planes Battle Spears In Weird Congo War

For months, The Congo has been wracked by a brutal rebellion which has Communist support. In this first of three articles on The Congo, an Associated Press special correspondent tells about this war without mercy and the mercenaries who fight it.

By SAUL PETT

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The thin young man in the swimming trunks wore a jeweled crucifix.

"Are you religious?" "Not particularly," he said. "Why the crucifix?"

"Oh, that. I took it from a rebel who no longer needed it. He came at me from about 15 yards with a Mauser. I fired at his head with an automatic rifle. It was hard to miss. In a manner of speaking, you might say I ventilated his think box."

The young man gave his name as Leonard Woods, 22, of Johannesburg, South Africa. Former occupation: Pipefitter. Present occupation: White mercenary.

"When we were going into Stanleyville," said another young man with the earnest look of a divinity student, "the major told us there would be no looting or raping, that we could get shot for either."

"There was nothing worth raping."

The second young man gave his name as Lance Fin Mills, 27, also of Johannesburg, also a mercenary.

We were sitting at the side of a swimming pool at the Funa Club in Leopoldville, during an incongruous pause in an incongruous war.

Some 700 miles to the east, in the equatorial rain forests of The Congo, the war was still going on, still borrowing a little from all the centuries of man.

GRIM WAR CONTINUES

It is a war where neither side takes prisoners for long, where both rebel and Congolese government troops torture captives, where thousands of blacks caught up in a century they never made have been killed, their bodies rotting in the tall elephant grass or left to the mercies of the crocodiles in the muddy rivers.

It is a war where rebels have practised cannibalism beyond human comprehension, where they have marched down a town street with the organs and blood of their victims on their hands while a police band played. It is a war where old planes on loan from the United States, flown by Cuban pilots, attack with rockets and, down below, on the side of a dusty road, a rebel group counter-attacks by stirring up a hornet's nest, convinced that one winged creature can bring down another.

It is a war where the looting is prodigious on both sides, where there are no immutable realities, where Moise Tshombe now heads the central government he fought more than two years; where a government soldier deserts, joins the rebels, later rejoins the government army, demanding—and receiving—retroactive pay for his desertion time.

It is a war where Stanleyville, a city of 300,000, fell to 100 rebels in six trucks, where other towns fell as the result of a telephone call which scared off the defenders. It is a war where the rebels began with spears and knives, convinced their "magic" made them immune to bullets, where they now fight with captured government weapons and some rifles from Algeria and China.

It is a war where the black men on both sides know little of their weapons and fire rifles, it is said, with their eyes closed, a war where a handful of white mercenaries—500 at peak strength—have made the differences so far and driven the rebels to the northeast. It is a war where human sensitivity is, at best, relative, where handsome young white men, brutalized by life in a brutal continent, come from South Africa, Rhodesia and Kenya to fight in The Congo for money and adventure.

'POTTING' IS SPORT

It is a war where young white men as pleasant-looking as those at the swimming club in Leopoldville have been known to take their sport and target practice by firing at and sinking scores of bloated black bodies drifting down the river.

It was Sunday at the Funa Club and rock 'n' roll music thundered from the loudspeakers.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club's recent game were: North-South: 1. Jack Goldie and Bill Simpson-Baile; 2. Minna Loomer and Sadie MacPherson; 3. Freda Small and Liliane LeButt; 4. Lou Duncan and Mike O'Brien; 5. (tie) Robin Booth and Jack Finkins, Jo Waddington and John Bishop.

East-West: 1. Tony Marsh and Paul Smith; 2. Dorothy McConnell and Les Isaacson; 3. Vi and Doug Hawkes; 4. Dick Lipsey and Joe Lukus; 5. Anne and Quincy Lewis.

There were 15 tables in play.

ON OPERA SITE

New Scotland Yard, headquarters of Britain's police forces, is built on the site of a never-completed opera house.

ers. Men were playing tennis while their wives sipped drinks at the side of the pool with an eye on the children in the water. Only a few Congolese were here; only a few could afford the small admission price. The young mercenaries, in Leopoldville to recover from a touch of malaria, appeared relaxed although they were returning to the fighting front the next day.

"I joined up for the money and get away from my wife," Leonard Woods was saying. "And if she doesn't improve as a housekeeper and a mother for our kid, I'll sign up for another six months."

"I came for the money and the adventure," said a tall, attractive blond boy from Nairobi, who is 20 and calls himself Ian without mentioning his last name.

A mercenary's salary ranges from about $450 to $1,500 a month, depending on his rank, dependents and combat time.

The mercenaries, who share their loot, make no secret of the safes they blow or the shops they loot in the course of recapturing rebel territory. They regard this as the legitimate spoils of war. They said if they didn't loot it, the Congolese would.

THUGS IN RANKS

The mercenaries I talked with, those named as well as others, said they themselves don't enjoy killing Africans, "although others might." They said they all come from good homes and are not ashamed of anything they're doing in The Congo. They said most of the thugs and pervers who had joined originally have been weeded out though some mercenaries with police records remain.

"I know one South African called Frenchie," said Leonard Woods. "I'd say he enjoys the killing. I'll bet he has killed 300 blacks himself. He just opens up with a machine-gun from an armored car. I've seen him laughing when he does it."

"I don't think much about the killing," said Allen Webster, another South African. Then he and his friends told this story:

They were drinking beer in a Stanleyville hotel room when they heard a thump overhead. It was a sniper who had fallen through the thin asbestos roof. They heard him running and followed the sounds from room to room until they finally got him with several machine-gun bursts.

He fell through the ceiling, dead at their feet, with six holes in him. They carried the body out of the hotel, dumped it in the bush, returned, washed the blood off their hands and resumed drinking beer.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

KMAS LEFTOVERS: One of Britain's top television awards was given to the major American network for their coverage of President Kennedy's funeral. It is the Foreign Program award, one of several made by the Guild of Television Producers and Directors. It was accepted on behalf of ABC, CBS and NBC by Dr. Cleath Brooks, the U.S. cultural attache.

For the technically minded, the word has been received that the Sony Corp. of Japan has perfected a new "single gun" television tube with a brightness factor five times greater than conventional tubes. Demonstrated in Tokyo recently, the new tube has an 80 per cent efficiency factor compared to 15 per cent for conventional tubes. Present color TV sets use a three-gun set-up.

Of more interest to those who can't at this time afford the American model color sets is that Sony is building a new factory for producing the tube in commercial quantities and expects to put color television sets using the new tube on the market in Japan sometime in 1965. Export distribution will follow when an overseas after-service system is established. The only thing that will kill our enjoying the benefits of Japan-produced color sets will be our high tariffs on their goods.

CBS-TV signed Robert Conrad to star in its new series, "The Wild West," designed as a western in James Bond style. Ross (Stump the Stars) Martin has been cast in a key running role. Conrad previously was one of the regulars in the "Hawaiian Eye" series.

Warners made for ABC-TV. Dimitri Tiomkin will compose the theme for the series.

British television, whose success with weekly multi-part night-time soap opera helped to inspire ABC-TV's Peyton Place, has now bought that serial. . . There's an auto-renting agency in the U.S. renting cars in New York with luxury appointments, including TV, stereo, hi-fi, FM radios, a bar, typewriters and other such luxury items. The most requested extra, says the company, is TV, but it can only be used in the back of the car, since the law does not permit TV in the front, where it may distract the driver.

When his seven-year MGM pact expires in three years, television's Dr. Kildare (Richard Chamberlain) will temporarily desert films, move to New York and do Broadway show, preferably a musical. . . How time passes! Jay North, 14-year-old actor, has been signed to co-star with Clint Walker in "Maya the Magnificent," adventure story to be filmed in India. North is known to millions of television viewers for his portrayal of "Dennis the Menace."

Esquimalt TV viewers are going to be given the chance to rid their homes of overhead antennas.

Victoria Cablevision Ltd. is to extend its system to about two-thirds of the municipality early in 1965. The trunk line from the firm's Mount Talmie transmitter has received approval and the company is now awaiting the green light from B.C. Telephone Company on the Esquimalt plan.

The plan includes the area west of Lampson Street and Head Street. The area east of these streets will be serviced later. Cablevision is now operating in Oak Bay, the immediate Mount Talmie area, Saanich peninsula and parts of the city.

YEAR OF CHANGES

Integration Hit Defence Pattern

By DAVE McINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP) — The year 1964 may go down in military history as a significant date because of a Canadian initiative.

It was the year the government integrated the top command structure of the armed forces.

In 1965, this integration will begin to percolate down to the commands of forces in the field. A single uniform is years away, however, and there is no intention of unifying all military units simply because, as an example, an infantry soldier can't fly a jet plane.

Integration brought many problems, chief among them, perhaps, the one of morale. Hundreds of personnel are being compulsorily retired and some of these complained that they were being treated like so many cyphers and without the defence department lifting a finger to help them find jobs in civvy street.

One of the aims of integration was a more flexible and faster-acting top command in which the warring of the services for financial attention would be eliminated.

Another was a reduction in administration—money and personnel—to release more funds for needed weapons and equipment.

There are signs that the first objective is being reached but it will probably be a few years before cuts in operations and maintenance costs are reflected significantly in the $1,525,000,000 annual defence budget.

Defence Minister Hellyer's stated aim is to reduce the armed forces by some 10,000 personnel to 110,000. This will require the compulsory retirement of some 2,000 officers and men. The others will leave as they reach normal retirement age.

While his department wrestled with integration, Mr. Hellyer wrestled with the cabinet in an apparently successful campaign to save his defence program.

WANTS CHEAPER PLANE
Mr. Hellyer opposed purchase of the American Phantom jet fighter-bomber on the grounds that such a heavy expense—some $400,000,000 for 108 planes—would knock his whole weapons program into a cocked hat and that air support of the army field force could be carried out by a much less expensive aircraft.

Some cabinet ministers favored the Phantom on the grounds that the heavy expense for Canadian production would spread more benefits through the Canadian aircraft industry than acquisition of a much cheaper plane. The aircraft in dustry relies heavily on defence contracts.

With a cheaper plane, Mr. Hellyer would still have funds for a $175,000,000 shipbuilding program — four helicopter-carrying destroyers and two fleet support ships like HMCS Provider, now in service.

Equipment programs announced during 1964 included nearly 1,000 American M-113 armored troop carriers for the army and 16 more American Hercules transport planes for the RCAF.

MUST WORK TOGETHER

More emphasis was placed on tri-service exercises in keeping with the government's stated aim in a white paper on defence in March that the forces must be able to act in concert and quickly, especially in the field of United Nations peace-keeping operations.

The 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, went to Cyprus in March as part of the UN force there and was relieved in September by the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards.

The 1st Battalion, The Black Watch, was designated as part of NATO's special airborne force for guarding the alliance flanks—that is, Norway, Turkey and Greece.

Both the navy and RCAF assisted in the Cyprus operation.

The Canadian Infantry Brigade in Europe was strengthened by the addition of new personnel and new equipment.

WARHEADS FOR RCAF
The RCAF Air Division in Europe got nuclear bombs for its CF-104 low-level jet strike planes, making it the fourth most powerful nuclear force in the world—after the U.S., Russia and Britain.

The RCAF base at Grostenquin, France, was closed because France wouldn't permit American nuclear warheads to be stored there and the CF-104s at Marville, France, were converted to a photo-reconnaissance role.

The 56 Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., got their nuclear noses in early 1964 but the Voodoo jet interceptors at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, Que., Val d'Or, Que., and Comox, B.C., were still without any nuclear rockets.

Storage dumps for these rockets had been scheduled to be completed by Oct. 1, 1964, but they now apparently won't be finished until spring.

In November, Mr. Hellyer announced a reduction to 30,000 from 45,000 in the strength of the militia. Fifty-eight major reserve army units and 15 minor ones disappeared in the most sweeping reorganization of the militia in the post-war years.

FLYING NURSES are newest wrinkle in Viet Nam war. A platoon of girl paratroopers, all trained nurses, will jump with troops in combat and attend the wounded. At left

Business Patent Use To Get Senate Probe

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new investigation is brewing in the U.S. Senate on charges that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is giving away valuable patent rights which belong to the taxpayers.

Complaints by some Senate and House of Representatives members picture NASA as signing away to business firms the rights to patents developed at public expense and worth untold millions of dollars. They contend a recent policy change made the situation worse.

James E. Webb, NASA administrator, has countered with a claim the agency is following federal law and guidelines laid down by President Kennedy shortly before his death.

The patents in question were developed under government-financed research contracts with commercial and other institutions.

A spokesman for a Senate small business subcommittee headed by Senator Russell B. Long (Dem.-La.) told a reporter it will meet shortly after Congress convenes Jan. 4 to consider senatorial requests for an investigation.

Long has been an outspoken critic of the differing patent policies employed by various government agencies under special laws.

'GIVE AWAY RIGHTS'

Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.-Ore.) and Senator Lee Metcalf (Dem.-Mont.) both contend the new NASA policy permits its contracting officers to negotiate patent waivers at the time they sign research contracts, thus giving away patent rights before even learning what they may be.

Morse has advised Long's subcommittee that this is contrary to both existing law and the constitution.

The forthcoming Congress session also promises investigations on many other fronts, too. The financial dealings of Bobby Baker, alleged "snooping" on government employees by their bosses, and the controversial contract for the development and production of the F-111 warplane (formerly known as the TFX), are among investigative problems awaiting the new Congress session.

The House has a less busy schedule of investigations ahead. Its main one will be a study of soaring costs of the new San Ramon House office building. Originally intended to cost $10,000,000 or less, it is winding up as a more than $35,000,000 project—the costliest public building in U.S. history.

Campbell Resignation Asked by Merger Foes

CAMPBELL RIVER — Angry anti-amalgamationists in this area have petitioned Premier W. A. C. Bennett asking for the resignation of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Led by Kenneth Forde, residents in the Willow Point area are writing to Premier Bennett and Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, seeking reversal of the municipal affairs department's decision to form a new district municipality.

Willow Point will join Campbell River before the end of the year.

The decision was taken this month after a referendum in the areas.

Letters are going out to the premier and lieutenant-governor at the rate of 25 to 30 a day.

Mr. Forde said he expected about 750 to be sent.

The letter to the lieutenant-governor claims Mr. Campbell is basing his decision on a favorable vote in Campbell River village and ignoring less favorable votes in the outlying districts.

The letter to the premier asks him to reverse Mr. Campbell's decision.

It also states: "We also demand that you remove Mr. Dan Campbell from any and all offices where he is to represent us in any matter."

"We no longer have confidence in him as we do not consider he is working in our interests."

A second vote on amalgamation will be taken Feb. 6 in two other areas which voted slightly against being amalgamated with Campbell River.

ISLAND DIGEST

Crofton Man 'Fair' After Car Mishap

DUNCAN — Anthony Yeomans, Crofton, is in "fair" condition in King's Daughters' Hospital here after a Saturday night accident.

Yeomans was a passenger in one of four cars involved in a pile-up three miles north of Duncan on the Trans-Canada Highway.

RCMP said Wayne Popplestone, Duncan, lost control of his car trying to pass Pasquale Anastasio, Victoria, and the cars collided.

Michael Kotilla, Ladysmith, slowed down as he approached the accident scene and was hit from behind by Cornelius Entius, Duncan.

Yeomans was injured about the head and body when he stepped in front of the Entius car. He had been a front seat passenger with Popplestone.

'MISSING BOAT' WASN'T MISSING

An air and sea search for a missing coastal vessel was called off Saturday when it was found at anchor in Viner Sound, 50 miles northeast of Alert Bay.

The vessel Day Point left Bella Bella Dec. 23 and RCAF Search and Rescue centre in Vancouver was told Christmas Eve it was to have reached Nanaimo earlier that day.

But skipper Rick Caultan of Nanaimo, advised Saturday of the search, reported he was not due back until Jan. 5.

Mr. Caultan, Douglas Miller of Burnaby and a man tentatively identified as Ken Olson apparently had stopped off in Viner Sound to seek shelter from heavy weather. They were found by the crew of the vessel

New Look No. 1, whose home port was not reported.

A Voyager helicopter from RCAF Station Comox had searched Surf Inlet, 250 miles northwest of Comox, for the Day Point.

Meanwhile, a search for missing Ahousat Indian Arthur Charlie, was called off Saturday.

The 31-year-old father of six, apparently slipped overboard from the fishboat Fisher Girl, about 18 miles from Tofino, Christmas Eve.

The boat, manned by Ahousat brothers Robert and Ronnie Thomas, was on its way from Tofino to Ahousat at the time.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN USED CAR LOT

NANAIMO — The body of a young woman was found in a downtown used car lot Saturday afternoon.

An autopsy was to be held today on 31-year-old Mrs. Joseph Jiles, of Cedar Indian Reserve.

Police say they do not suspect foul play in the death of the mother of four.

She was found lying beside a truck on the lot around 2:30 p.m.

Amid the Snow, A Plucky Show

NANAIMO (CP) — Palm trees swayed in the wind here Saturday as a beachside crowd gulped bananas and applied suntan lotion briskly.

There was snow all over the place.

More than 200 persons braved the 46-degree water in the harbor here in the annual Silver Polar Bear Swim staged by realtor Frank Ney.

Oldest male swimmer was George White, 63, of Nanaimo, and oldest female Mrs. Adelaide Wilmet, 67, of Cedar.

Three silver dollars for each of four teen-agers who stayed in the water longest went to Marion Mackie, 16, of Chase River; Joy Geiger, 14, of Bowen Road; Rick Tate, 14, of Nanooze Bay, and Rick Price, 17, of Wellington.

They stayed in the bay 47½ minutes.

After they came out and the swim was over, the palm trees and the suntan lotion vanished. The bananas were already gone.

The snow was still there.

PARK TRAILS, CAMPSITES

More Work Planned For Prison Teams

A quiet start on development of trails and campsites in Strathcona Park last summer will be intensified in 1965 by a provincial program of using prison workers in the woods.

Two camps of 60 prisoners each were used on Vancouver Island for the first time this year, working in Strathcona Park and Sayward Forest northwest of Campbell River.

A third camp will be set up next summer to expand the work party and possibly add prisoners to the fire-watching personnel in the forest area.

Success of the provincial program up Island may revive efforts by the federal minimum security establishment at William Head to give its prisoners work in Victoria's Durrance Lake and Thetis Lake parks which would benefit the community.

PETERED OUT

Talks were initiated by the William Head officials about three years ago with City Hall but petered out.

The provincial program, called the Forestry and Corrections Camp Program co-ordinated by the forestry department and the corrections branch, began in 1957 in Chilliwack.

It spread to other parts of the province and this year jumped the water to Vancouver Island.

150 MILES

In Strathcona Park, the prisoners built a trail up to Drum Lookout on Crest Mountain as the start of a series of wilderness trails totalling 150 miles long sought by hiking enthusiasts. The trails will be available for forest fire protection as well as recreation.

Most of the 1964 program was concentrated in Sayward Forest where the prisoners:

Built a 15-unit campsite on Morton Lake, developed a beach, cleared a parking area and made a shoreline trail;

SHIPS RESCUE 2,000 FROM FLOODED ISLAND

MADRAS, India (AP)—Two Indian naval ships have rescued nearly 2,000 persons marooned on the island of Dhanushkodi off southern India by tidal waves last week. Officials estimate the death toll at 300, including 115 passengers on a train that was washed away along with the railway bridge to the mainland.

SIX INCHES

Vancouver Belted Again

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The weatherman did not classify it as a blizzard, but don't try to tell Vancouver's motoring public that.

Six inches of new snow which fell on the British Columbia lower mainland today, made driving hazardous and in some areas streets were like outdoor skating rinks, as the white stuff fell on top of already formed ice.

Some south Vancouver hills were impassable even with the use of snow tires and chains. The usual Monday, post-holiday traffic rush was slowed to a crawl.

The weatherman predicted more snow flurries for Tuesday, however, he did say they would slacken in intensity. The cause of the latest outburst was some "very unstable air," the weather office reported.

The disturbances changed from the thaw that started Saturday and continued through early Sunday, to blizzard intensity in some parts of the province early today.

OUT OF SALT

Municipal snow crews worked overnight in most areas, salting and clearing main thoroughfares. Further difficulties were encountered when the Vancouver Salt Company reported that storms and flooding in Oregon and California have cut off the supply routes and they are out of salt for road work.

L. J. Beasley, manager of the company, said stocks were exhausted and he had no idea when more would arrive.

Police described driving conditions as "just horrible." City officials have described December's snow as the worst since 1951.

SARAGAT
... president

Coalition Votes Chief For Italy

ROME (Reuters)—The National Assembly tonight elected Social-Democrat Foreign Minister Giuseppe Saragat, 66, president of the Italian Republic, ending the longest presidential election in European history.

The chamber of Deputies and the Senate, voting in joint session, elected Saragat on their 21st ballot in 13 days. Socialist Deputy Premier Pietro Nenni withdrew from the race after the 20th ballot this morning.

The Christian Democrats, the Socialists, the Social Democrats and the Republicans—the parties included in Premier Aldo Moro's left-of-centre coalition government, and the Communists all announced before the vote that they intended to back Saragat.

Saragat's election to replace ailing President Antonio Segni, who has not yet recovered from the stroke that led to his resignation, capped the longest presidential election in Europe since it took the French National Assembly 15 ballots to elect Rene Coty in 1953.

Legislators stood up and began applauding enthusiastically when the vote count for Saragat passed 482, the simple majority-plus-one of both houses required for election. He was elected with 646 votes.

Nenni withdrew shortly before the voting began on the 21st ballot.

Philip Plans Visit

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip will visit Australia for a week in February, Buckingham Palace announced today.

He is expected to arrive at Canberra Feb. 20 and to leave Australia from Sydney Feb. 26. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will pay state visits to Ethiopia and the Sudan from Feb. 1-12.

Copters Waiting Weather Break

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A snowstorm pounded parts of the flood-stricken west for the second day today, isolating hundreds in rough mountain country near the California-Oregon line.

Twenty-five military helicopters awaited a break in the weather to begin a massive supply and rescue mission to 500 persons in the Klamath and Salmon River areas of California's Siskiyou County.

The weather bureau predicted that the snow could reach more than three feet. Snow and flooding has cut off the communities of Sawyer's Bar, Salmon and Cecilville and Somes Bar for a week.

Meanwhile massive rescue and cleanup operations went forward farther west in the coastal Redwood Empire region of California.

The colder weather helped rivers recede throughout California, Oregon and Idaho after a week of rainstorms flooded thousands of square miles.

River Delta Littered With Debris

The shores of the Eel River delta were littered with carcasses of an estimated 3,000 dairy cows, redwood logs and lumber—the latter from saw mills and shattered homes.

At least two feet of snow were reported in the rugged Siskiyou.

"People could be up there freezing to death," reported civil defence chief Bill Sowle in Yreka, Calif. "They haven't had food for a week and might be without fuel."

The Red Cross in Washington, D.C., said more than 16,300 families suffered flood losses to their homes, farms or businesses. The breakdown was 8,647 in California, 7,170 in Oregon, 365 in Idaho, and 149 in Washington.

The worst appeared over in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Nevada, but the task of repairing highways alone was a gigantic one. Floods washed away 28 bridges in Oregon, damaged or destroyed 60 in California and wiped out a dozen spans in Idaho's Shoshone County.

In California, the weather bureau reported that the new storm would cause some rivers to rise again.

Some major highways were cleared, but highway authorities estimated it would take months to rebuild in many areas.

Roads, Power Still Knocked Out

Railroad service was partially restored but travel from California to Oregon was expected to be impossible at least until New Year's Day. Power still was out in many regions.

More than 30 helicopters, including those of the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Bennington, flew mercy missions as the weather permitted in California's Humboldt County. Reinforcements from bases throughout the west were scheduled to join the operation today.

At Crescent City, which was badly battered by tidal waves following the Alaska earthquake last spring, the harbor was jammed with debris washed down from the hills. Parts of houses, butane tanks, trees and dead livestock bobbed in the choppy waters.

The town also suffered a shortage of drinking water because the floods inundated the 300-foot-deep main well. Scores of other communities in the flood areas boiled drinking water to avoid typhoid fever.

In Portland, which was threatened for two days by the Willamette River, one resident said the drinking water tasted like "a mixture of chlorine and mud."

At Rio Dell in California, a cafe kept its gas camping stove going 24 hours a day with a pot of stew simmering for refugees who walked as far as 50 miles from their wrecked homes.

Meanwhile, hundreds of local law enforcement officials—together with representatives of the Red Cross, federal disaster agencies and civilian volunteers—pressed their efforts to help the thousands of stranded and homeless flood victims.

"Every call we get for help seems to be an emergency," said one weary civil defence official.

Ships Rush To Freighter

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—British and French ships early today steamed toward the crippled 7,144-ton Lebanese vessel Katerina Samona sinking in the Atlantic 200 miles off Spain's northwest coast.

The 5,000-ton French ship Fort St. Pierre radioed the sinking ship and asked the master to prepare to abandon ship for a rescue bid.

The 6,855-ton British steamer St. Essylt also headed toward the rescue area.

The Katerina Samona, carrying a cargo of lumber from Vancouver to Plymouth, first radioed it was listing with two holds and the engine room flooded.

Later it radioed it was sinking and was jettisoning cargo.

UN In Last-Ditch Bid To Avert Showdown

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Negotiators made last-minute efforts at the United Nations today to resolve the crisis over peace-keeping assessments with Secretary-General U Thant taking a leading role.

The negotiations were at a crucial stage as diplomats sought to head off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over the Soviet refusal to pay for peace-keeping costs for the Congo and Middle East.

A UN spokesman said Thant would return to his headquarters office this afternoon for the first time since he went to a hospital Dec. 4 for treatment of a peptic ulcer.

He was expected to confer with key delegates, including Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko and U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, UN sources said.

Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana also took an active part in the talks, the sources said. He met early in the day with Paul Tremblay, Canada's chief delegate, and scheduled a later meeting with Fedorenko.

A Canadian spokesman said Tremblay and Quaison-Sackey exchanged views and ideas on closing the gap between the Russians and Americans and that the Canadian had put forward some suggestions for accomplishing this.

The negotiators hoped to work out some agreement before the assembly's next meeting, Tuesday morning. The Security Council can't function after Thursday—New Year's Eve—unless agreement is reached on the basic issue or unless two disputed council seats are filled without a vote so as to avoid a challenge of the Soviets' right to vote.

The Soviet Union will not pay assembly assessments to finance The Congo and Middle East peace-keeping operations because it contends the Security Council alone has the right to start and finance such operations. So it is more than two years behind in its total assessments.

The United States says that if a vote on anything is called in the assembly, the Soviet Union must suffer the penalty set out in Article 19 of the UN charter, which states that any member two years behind in assessments shall have no vote in the assembly.

To avoid a showdown, there has been no voting since the assembly convened Dec. 1, and all necessary business has been done by general consent. But diplomatic sources said assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana had failed to get agreement to elect Security Council members the same way.

MAY SKIRT DEMAND

Delegates were hopeful some way would be found to get around Indonesia's demand to be allowed to vote against Malaysia, which is otherwise, opposed to replace Czechoslovakia.

But they said Quaison-Sackey had failed to resolve a contest between Jordan and Mali for Morocco's seat.

Jordanian chief delegate Abdul Monem Rifa'i told a reporter that if no agreement could be reached on some informal method by Tuesday, he would demand in the assembly that the election be decided before Friday by the usual vote. That would bring on the big-power showdown.

Record Cold Shivers Dawson City

EDMONTON (CP)—Record low temperatures for two consecutive days were set at Dawson City, Y.T., Sunday and today, the weather office reported.

The mercury dipped to 63 below Sunday three degrees below the former mark for Dec. 27 established in 1917.

Temperatures dropped to 63 below again early today. Previous low for Dec. 28 was 58 below, also established in 1917.

Half White Hostages Still Alive in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—White mercenary soldiers on a rescue mission in the northern Congo radioed today that about half the 160 white hostages of the rebels in the region between Paulis and Wamba are still believed to be alive.

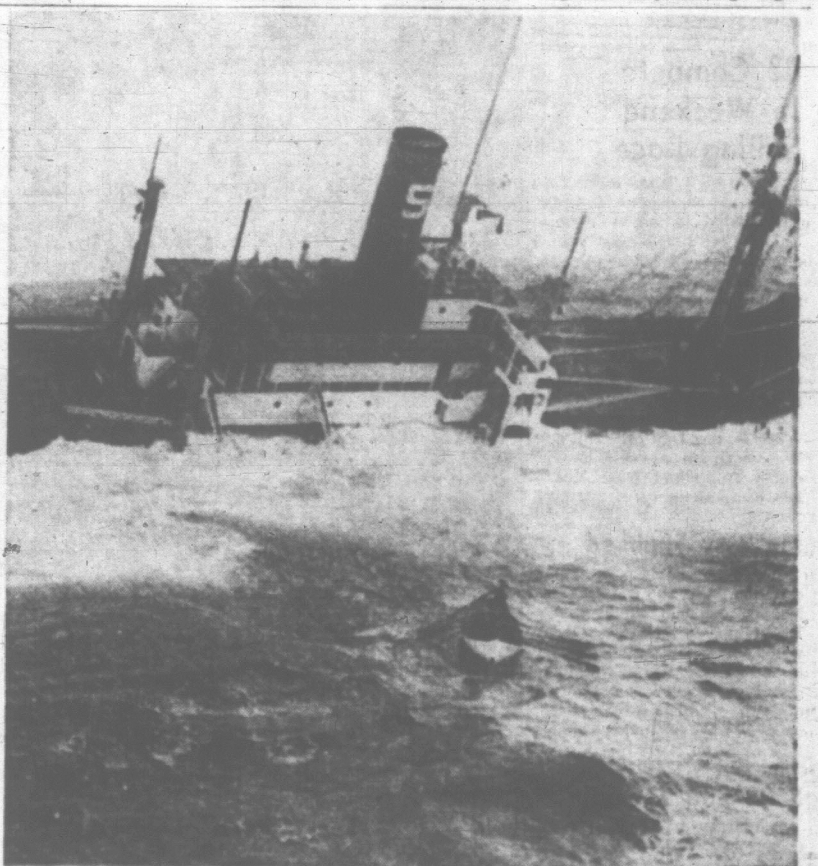

But the fate of 80 other missionaries and merchants still is unknown, the radio message said. A United Nations doctor was reported to have been slaughtered by the rebels, who have butchered more than 160 whites in the last two months.

A column of Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe's Belgian

and South African mercenary fighters is driving southeast from Paulis, capital of Uele province, to Wamba, about 60 miles away.

The rescue column radioed that it had freed a group of about 10 Greek merchants at Metcha, a small town 25 miles south of Paulis. The merchants gave them news of the other hostages, the message reported.

The UN declined to identify the doctor reported killed by the rebels. A senior official of the world organization said the doctor's next-of-kin had not yet been informed.

7 Tons of Clothing To Warm Children

The Times "Help the Hungry Child" fund for 1964 reached $10,628.46 today. But there is still time to help the starving children of Korea.

Last-minute donations will be accepted for inclusion in this year's budget of the Unitarian Services Committee.

Donations should be sent to "Help the Hungry Child Fund" in care of The Times, 2631 Douglas Street.

Last year at this time, the total raised was $12,290. So far this year, more than 4,000 pounds of clothing for Korean children have been donated by the people of Vancouver and Gulf Islands.

It is being crated by Dowell's Cartage and Storage Ltd., at 1117 Wharf Street and will be shipped to Vancouver next week. A freighter leaving Vancouver Jan. 15 will deliver the clothing to Korea by Jan. 31.

"We can still handle more," a spokesman for the Unitarian Services Committee said. "Clothing should be clean and warm and should be delivered direct to 1117 Wharf Street."

Since the USC was formed in July, 1945, more than $3,

Snow-Free City Takes Weather-Beaten Mainland Birds Under Its Wing

The annual bird count in Victoria Sunday turned up 125 species, second highest number recorded.

The count was two less than last year, which was a record both for Victoria and for the country as a whole.

About 45 members of the Victoria Natural History Society, split up into teams and recorded all birds seen between dawn and dusk.

About 50,000 birds were counted, roughly the same as last year, said co-ordinator David Stirling.

Robins and varied thrushes were particularly numerous, especially where there are old apples and hawthorn berries.

"What this means is that the Vancouver area was frozen up and most of them came to Victoria to weather the storm," said Mr. Stirling. A large percentage of birds counted were sea birds or water fowl.

Some summer birds such as goldfinches, cowbirds and bluebirds were seen. An orange-

The fulmer is a bird of the high seas not usually found close to shore.

"It is hard to say why it was close to shore," said Mr. Stirling. "There may have been a storm, or lack of food or it may have been injured."

The count, first done officially here in 1958, encompassed a 15-mile diameter circle from Island View Beach to Oak Bay and Cordova Bay to Witty's Lagoon. The count is part of an inter-

000 members of the Audubon

Society in Canada and the U.S.

The Christmas census is conducted between Dec. 25 and Jan. 2 and indicates bird population trends and migration patterns. The counts started in 1900.

ONLY 362 days to Christmas... don't be caught napping in 1965. That was the scene in a downtown city street this morning as hundreds flocked to buy next year's Christmas cards and wrapping paper. Reason for the rush was a post-Christmas sale, offering batches of cards at give-away prices. Other Christmas items are also being offered cheap. So don't delay. Do your Christmas shopping now. By tomorrow there'll only be 361 days to go. (Times photo)

SKI REPORT

Ski report from Green Mountain at 10 a.m. today:

Three inches of new snow, 75 inches of old; temperature 19 degrees; snowing. Conditions good; three tows running. Road clear to bottom of K-30, chains required. One snowmobile running.

FOR NEW YEAR

Traditional Regal Fete Scheduled

More than 1,500 male British Columbians are expected to attend the traditional New Year's Day reception at Government House.

His Honor Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will receive callers from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and aldermen of the city council of Victoria will hold their customary reception from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. at City Hall. Guests should enter through the Pandora Street entrance.

Bishop Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, will receive at his residence, 740 View Street, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt and his council will receive visitors at the Municipal Hall from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. HMCS Naden wardroom will receive from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.; the chiefs' mess from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and the petty officers' mess from noon to 1 p.m.

Fifth (British Columbia) Independent Medium Battery, Royal Regiment of Canadian Artillery, officers' mess, Bay Street Armoury, 10 a.m. to noon.

Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), officers' mess 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; sergeants' mess from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Christmas Tour For Blind Tonight

Fifty blind persons will be taken on a tour of the Christmas lights tonight by the South Van Isle Lions Club.

Some of the blind persons can distinguish colors and each will be escorted, said a Lions official. It was hoped to make the tour an annual affair.

The tour leaves at 7 p.m. and should last about two hours. Food and coffee will be served after the tour.

Victorians crowded into the downtown area today to exchange Christmas gifts—and caused several traffic tieups and full parking lots.

"Everyone wants to get gifts exchanged," said Inspector Brooke Douglass, head of the traffic division.

"It usually follows after Christmas."

He reported periodic jams especially on Broad, View and Fort Streets.

He called in several men from other duties to help the four or five on regular traffic duties.

"Gift exchanging is a big thing," he said. "There will be a little less Tuesday if the pattern follows."

Stores reported they were busy exchanging Christmas gifts but said it was normal for just after Christmas.

"You can pretty well expect this every year," said one store.

Tugboatmen Reject 22% Increase

One thousand masters, mates and engineers in the province's tugboat industry have rejected a conciliation board report calling for a 22 per cent wage increase over three years, it was announced today.

In a secret ballot, only one man voted to accept the report, said Robert Cook, president of Local 425, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The masters and mates are members of the CBRT and of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild. There are between 100 and 150 members in Victoria, principally at Island Tug and Barge.

The men are seeking a 25 per cent increase in a two-year contract. Current wages are between $400 and $600 a month.

There was no word from the B.C. Towboat Owners Association, representing more than 40 companies.

REPORT SOON

A contract dispute between tugboat owners and 600 deckhands and cooks is before a conciliation board.

The men are members of CBRT Local 400 and the Seafarers International Union. There are between 50 and 75 members in Victoria.

"We are still going to try to meet the owners," said Mr. Cook today. "But no meetings have been arranged."

It would take between two and four weeks to conduct a secret strike vote, he said.

If the vote was held and favored a strike, such action would probably tie up the whole province, he said.

Strike action would affect the pulp and paper industry, oil, lumber and deep-sea shipping.

The unions' separate agreements expired Sept. 30. Bargaining began last August and the dispute went to conciliation late last month.

CAR ROLLED DRIVER HURT

An elderly man was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital today with a fracture of the left arm after his car was rolled on its side when in collision with another at Quadra and Burdett.

City police have not yet released the names of the drivers involved.

The fire department was called to the scene to wash away gasoline which spilled from the overturned car.

ZONING PLAN

Third Hearing Jan. 12 In N. Saanich

Third public hearing on the controversial North Saanich zoning plan was set today for Jan. 12.

Municipal affairs department officials scheduled it for 8 p.m. in North Saanich High School and it is expected to draw a large crowd.

The third session originally had been set for Dec. 18 but had to be cancelled due to adverse weather.

The first two sessions—held in the Legislative Buildings and in North Saanich High School Dec. 17—drew a large number of oral and written briefs—most of them favoring the Capital Region Planning Board's proposed zoning boundaries for the unorganized territory.

The sessions are being conducted by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell who will have to decide whether or not the CRPB plan will be adopted officially.

School Board Head Ready To Step Down

A new chairman will rap the gavel when Greater Victoria school board holds its 1965 inaugural meeting Jan. 4 in Craigdarroch Castle.

Chairman for the past three years, Mrs. A. B. Thompson said today she would step down to allow trustees to elect a new chairman among themselves.

Although she found the job rewarding, "it takes a tremendous amount of time," she said. Besides, she has given it three years and a normal term as chairman is one year.

Mrs. Thompson said there are several other members of the board fitted to assume the role of chairman.

Trustee John Porteous, a member for Victoria, is vice-chairman this year.

COMMITTEE HEADS

First job of a new chairman is to appoint committee heads for the year, enabling committees to meet before the regular board meeting, in this case Jan. 18.

A full complement of trustees is not expected to be present for the inaugural meeting. Nobody ran for a recent seat in the December elections.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said he would appoint someone to fill the spot by Jan. 1, but it is unlikely he will make the appointment in the short time left.

The new man will come from Saanich, rather than Victoria, bringing area representation to three each from Victoria and Saanich, two from Oak Bay and one from Esquimalt.

ONLY ANSWER, SAYS MARINA OPERATOR

And Now... 'Party Boat' Fishing

By RON SUDLOW

Sports fishing in Victoria is in the dark ages compared to United States methods, says Oak Bay Marina operator Bob Wright.

The accepted method of fishing these waters is trolling for salmon with frozen bait or lures.

"These methods produced well up to four years ago," said Mr. Wright. "But increased commercial pressures—net fishing in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and early harvests by sports and commercial trollers of resident salmon stocks—have made fish harder and harder to get."

"And the last three years have been the poorest on record for sports catches."

A visit to California has convinced Mr. Wright party boat fishing with live bait is the answer. He will put one into operation here next year.

The party boat or drift fishing method uses tides, wind and live bait to provide trolling action.

And anglers won't be going after just salmon.

"Cod, halibut and bass provide good sport and good eating. And they are plentiful in our waters," Mr. Wright said.

"Midwesterners and prairie people vacationing here just want to catch a fish when they go out."

The drift fishing method will also be effective against schooled salmon such as coho and pinks.

$25,000 CONVERSION

Mr. Wright's drift fishing boat is now entering final stages of its $25,000 conversion from the RCN torpedo recovery boat HMCS Lakewood. Work is being done at Patricia Bay.

It will retain the navy name as a charter craft.

"It is designed to fit our needs. It has a big beam with little wheelhouse space and lots of deck," Mr. Wright said.

40 PER TRIP

The craft will be licensed under the Canadian Steamship Inspection Service and carry up to 40 people per trip on its four trips daily for 100 days next tourist season.

It will operate in waters adjacent to Oak Bay.

"With this boat, we hope to put Victoria on the fishing map. Tourists bypass us if they want to go fishing

... They immediately think of Campbell River.

"A fishing trip will encourage tourists to spend an extra day in Victoria and that puts money into everybody's pockets," Mr. Wright said.

Forecast: We'll Shiver 'n' Shake The New Year In

By TERRY IZZARD

Father Time would do well to forget his scythe and egg-timer this year.

His best bet would be a broom and shovel.

Snow... cold... no change... that's all Victoria weatherman William Mackie can promise for the New Year.

From his snow-capped perch on Gonzales Hill today, he predicted: "Mostly cloudy, some snow showers, remaining cold."

"JUST AS COLD"

And he said: "The way things are going the New Year looks like coming in just as cold."

Highest temperatures for the next few days look like being 35 degrees, while at night the thermometer will sink to freezing or just below.

MORE SNOW

While early risers here were met this morning by bright sunshine, Duncan, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and all points north were suffering further snow storms.

In Port Alberni it has now reached a depth of nearly 18 inches.

And while most main roads were being kept clear, the road to Tofino was finally made impassable.

For motorists everywhere, except the Greater Victoria area, the picture was the same... snow tires or chains.

MORE ON MALAHAT

Overnight another two inches fell on the Malahat, making driving treacherous without chains.

Below-average temperatures gave little hope of a thaw in the near future.

Nanaimo is still buried under 13 inches while Courtenay and Comox report nine inches.

Flying at RCAF Comox is still restricted to important missions only.

Over the weekend RCMP detachments in the main centres reported a rash of minor accidents. Most were blamed on icy and slushy road conditions. There were no serious injuries.

DEER HUNGRY

In the Cowichan Valley, Mesachie Lake and Honeycomb Bay areas, half-starved deer have invaded residential properties in search of food.

One person reported spotting a cougar on the road four miles east of Lake Cowichan.

One bright note is the chance of a few sunny periods Tuesday.

License Taken Away

David Earl Craig, 3110 Irma, today was fined $300 and lost his licence after being convicted in city police court of impaired driving.

Court was told he collided with a parked car at 1:15 a.m. Christmas Day, causing an estimated $200 damage to each car.

A breathalyzer test showed a .21 reading.

LT. COL. ELLIOT... to Kingston

New Colonel Appointed For QORs

A switch in the command of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, stationed at Work Point Barracks, was announced today.

Lt. Col. H. C. F. Elliot, 43, who has commanded the battalion for three years, has been appointed chief staff officer of the Canadian Army's eastern Ontario area at Kingston, Ont.

Lt. Col. C. L. Kirby, 40, staff officer with the army's directorate of international operations, Ottawa, will take over command of the Queen's Own Rifles here.

JAN. 22 PARADE

A change-over parade will take place on the parade square at Work Point Barracks on the morning of Jan. 22. It will be both a greeting to the new commanding officer and a farewell to Col. Elliot.

Lt. Col. Kirby, a native of Calgary, has been stationed in Ottawa for the past three years.

As staff officer with the directorate of international operations, he has been largely concerned with air movements of Canadian troops abroad.

Swearing In For Aldermen Set Monday

A Supreme Court ceremony to swear in new aldermen and Victoria school trustees is set for next Monday morning, followed by inaugural meetings afternoon and evening.

Mr. Justice Robert A. B. Wootton will administer oaths of office at 10 a.m. in Supreme Court Chambers to newly-elected Clyde Savage and three re-elected aldermen, A. W. Toone, Austin Curtis and Cecil Parrott.

Re-elected school trustee Lloyd Clarkson will also take the oath.

First 1965 meeting of city council will be at 2 p.m. Monday and for school trustees the inaugural will be at 8 p.m. The mayor's inaugural address will be a week later, scheduled for a meeting of council Jan. 11.

As with his last New Year's speech, Mayor R. B. Wilson finds the time required to prepare it fails to meet the statutory deadline for the first meeting of the year.

Citizens Given Warning

Greater Victoria police departments today warned homeowners to be on their guard because of an upsurge of house break-ins this month.

So far in December a total of 42 house burglaries have been reported to police in the city, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Police say this is far above normal.

Esquimalt hasn't had any this month "but we've been very fortunate," Police Chief James Smart said.

Police suspect the same person or persons are responsible for the thefts.

SAME METHOD

"They ride around in a car and look for a house in complete darkness, then ring the doorbell, and enter through a back window or door."

"People should leave their lights on when they go out. They should arrange with a neighbor to keep an eye on their place if they are going out at this time of year."

"They should also watch for phone calls when the other party hangs up and contact police with information on anything that looks suspicious," he said.

Det. Insp. Harry Mercer of city police said people should watch for anyone who looks suspicious. One of the problems is people don't look suspicious between 6 and 8 in the evening, he said.

IN FAIRFIELD

Det. Sgt. Norman Bath added most of the city's 20 break-ins this month have occurred in the Fairfield district.

Four more break-ins occurred over the weekend.

Miss Margaret Fletcher, 1212 St. Charles St., reported a transistor radio valued at $39.95 was missing.

B. F. Crump, 330 Masters, had his home broken into but only a watch was stolen although cash was left in plain view.

Entry was gained by kicking out a rear basement window.

Thieves forced a sliding ground-level window overnight Saturday and stole $50 in cash from the home of Herbert Robertson, 313 Windemere Pl., and a break-in was discovered at 1647 Hollywood Cres., but nothing was reported missing.

Ask The Times

Q. When did the City of Vancouver first become authorized to hold Sunday sports charging admission? W.W.A.

A. Dec. 14, 1955, when a referendum authorized commercial Sunday sports between the hours of 1 and 6 p.m. Vote was 28,021 to 26,124. A simple majority was all that was necessary.

Q. In lowering temperatures, which would survive the longest—a warm-blooded animal or a cold-blooded animal? B.M.H.

A. The answer to this depends on the insulation of the animals and their food reserves in their body.

Generally, warm-blooded animals will survive under sub-freezing temperatures if insulation and food reserves are sufficient as is the case of many Arctic animals.

But cold-blooded animals—fish and reptiles—would die exposed to sub-freezing temperatures.

However, if internal body temperatures were lowered cold-blooded animals would live longest.

Nigeria Political Protest Broken Up

LAGOS (Reuters)—Riot police, using truncheons and shields, today broke up a demonstration by some 2,000 persons outside State House, the official seat of Nigeria's President Nnamdi Azikiwe.

The demonstration was organized by the United Progressive Grand Alliance, one of Nigeria's two major political groups, in support of its request for a postponement of the country's first federal elections, scheduled for Wednesday.

Viet Nam Leaders Threaten to Quit

Lidia Named Soviet Athlete of Year

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet sports writers have for the first time chosen a woman as Soviet athlete of the year.

Lidia Skoblikova, world speed skating champion and winner of four gold medals at the Innsbruck Winter Olympics, headed the list of top Soviet athletes chosen by news, radio and television men.

Five Killed in Venezuela Air Crash

CARACAS (AP)—A light plane of the Venezuelan communications ministry crashed into a house in foggy weather today, minutes after taking off from Caracas' military airport, and all five persons aboard were killed. The victims included Alejandro Oropeza Castillo, former governor of the federal district.

Vancouver Again
Belted by Snow

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The weatherman did not classify it as a blizzard, but don't try to tell Vancouver's motoring public that.

Six inches of new snow which fell on the British Columbia lower mainland today, made driving hazardous and in some areas streets were like outdoor skating rinks, as the white stuff fell on top of already formed ice.

Some south Vancouver hills were impassable even with the use of snow tires and chains. The usual Monday, post-holiday traffic rush was slowed to a crawl.

The weatherman predicted more snow flurries for Tuesday, however, he did say they would slacken in intensity. The cause of the latest outburst was some "very unstable air," the weather office reported.

OUT OF SALT

Municipal snow crews worked overnight in most areas, salting and clearing main thoroughfares. Further difficulties were encountered when the Vancouver Salt Company reported that storms and flooding in Oregon and California have cut off the supply routes and they are out of salt for road work.

L. J. Beasley, manager of the company, said stocks were exhausted and he had no idea when more would arrive. Police described driving conditions as "just horrible." City officials have described December's snow as the worst since 1951.

Temperatures dropped to 63 below again early today. Previous low for Dec. 28 was 58 below, also established in 1917.

Mayo, Snag and Aishihik also reported extreme lows today. Low point was Snag, where the reading dropped to 68 below. Mayo was 66 below and Aishihik 58 below.

7 Tons of Clothing
To Warm Children

The Times "Help the Hungry Child" fund for 1964 reached $10,628.46 today. But there is still time to help the starving children of Korea.

Last-minute donations will be accepted for inclusion in this year's budget of the Unitarian Services Committee.

Donations should be sent to "Help the Hungry Child Fund" in care of The Times, 2631 Douglas Street.

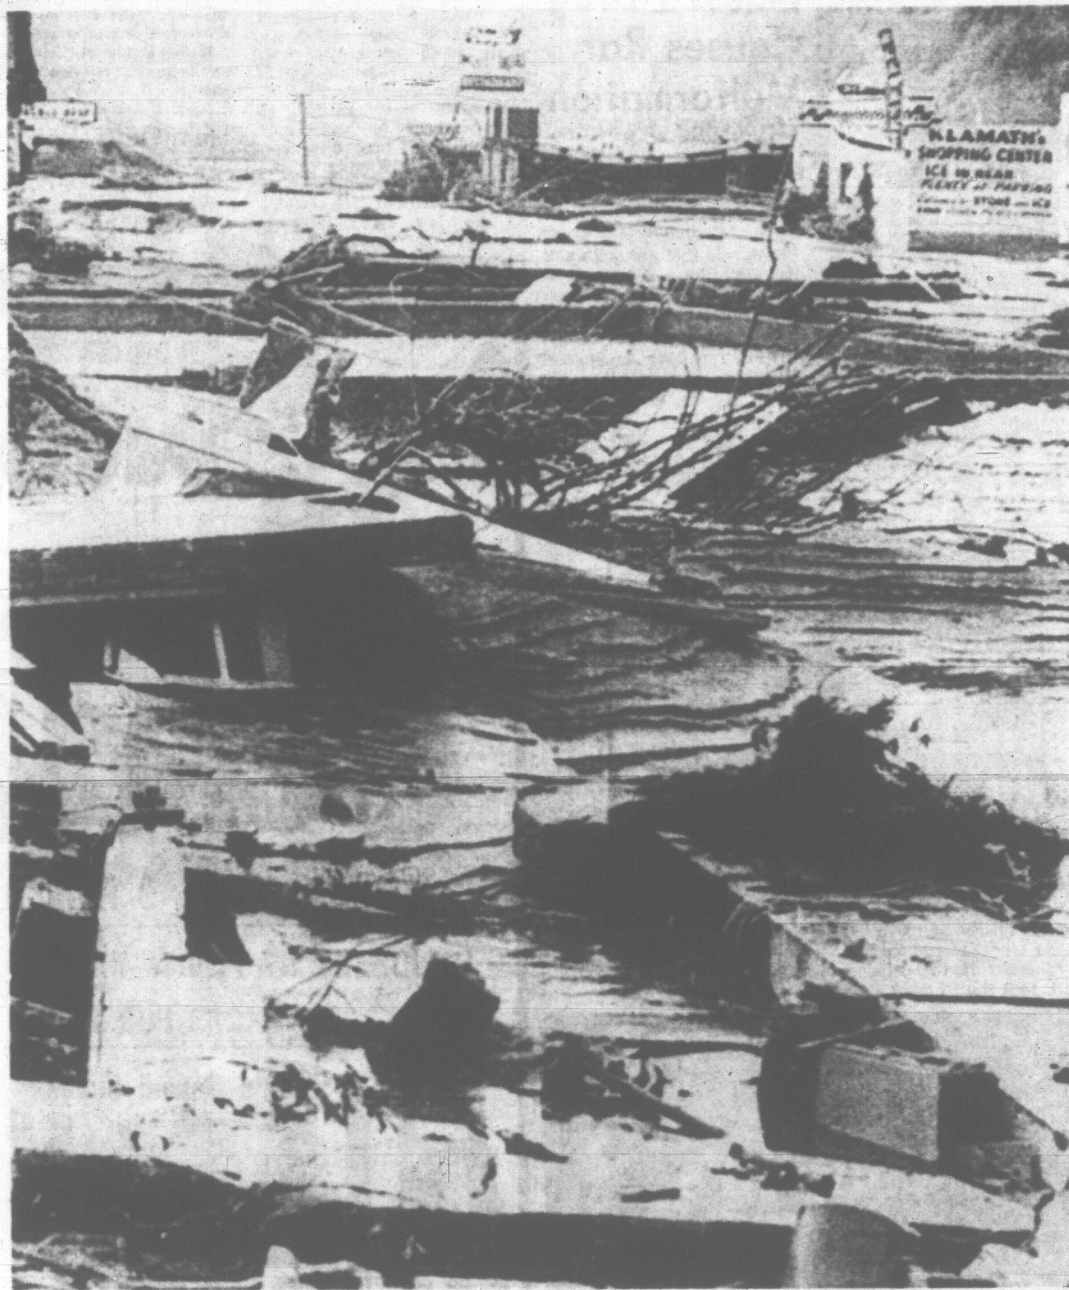

So far this year, more than 14,000 pounds of clothing for Korean children have been donated by the people of Vancouver and Gulf Islands. It is being crated by Dowell's Cartage and Storage Ltd., at 1117 Wharf Street and will be shipped to Vancouver next week. A freighter leaving Vancouver Jan. 15 will deliver the clothing to Korea by Jan. 31.

"We can still handle more," a spokesman for the Unitarian Services Committee said. "Clothing should be clean and warm and should be delivered direct to 1117 Wharf Street."

UN In Last-Ditch Bid
To Avert Showdown

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Negotiators made last-minute efforts at the United Nations today to resolve the crisis over peace-keeping assessments with Secretary-General U Thant taking a leading role.

The negotiations were at a crucial stage as diplomats sought to head off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over the Soviet refusal to pay for peace-keeping costs for the Congo and Middle East.

A UN spokesman said Thant would return to his headquarters office this afternoon for the first time since he went to a hospital Dec. 4 for treatment of a peptic ulcer.

He was expected to confer with key delegates, including Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko and U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, UN sources said.

Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana also took an active part in the talks, the sources said. He met early in the day with Paul Tremblay, Canada's chief delegate, and scheduled a later meeting with Fedorenko.

A Canadian spokesman said Tremblay and Quaison-Sackey exchanged views and ideas on closing the gap between the Russians and Americans and that the Canadian had put forward some suggestions for accomplishing this.

The negotiators hoped to work out some agreement before the assembly's next meeting, Tuesday morning. The Security Council can't function after Thursday—New Year's Eve—unless agreement is reached on the basic issue or unless two disputed council seats are filled without a vote so as to avoid a challenge of the Soviets' right to vote.

The Soviet Union will not pay assembly assessments to finance The Congo and Middle East peace-keeping operations because it contends the Security Council alone has the right to start and finance such operations. So it is more than two years behind in its total assessments.

The United States says that if a vote on anything is called in the assembly, the Soviet Union must suffer the penalty set out in Article 19 of the UN charter, which states that any member two years behind in assessments shall have no vote in the assembly.

To avoid a showdown, there has been no voting since the assembly convened Dec. 1, and all necessary business has been done by general consent. But diplomatic sources said, assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana had failed to get agreement to elect Security Council members the same way.

MAY SKIRT DEMAND

Delegates were hopeful some way would be found to get around Indonesia's demand to be allowed to vote against Malaysia, which is otherwise opposed to replace Czechoslovakia.

But they said Quaison-Sackey had failed to resolve a contest between Jordan and Mali for Morocco's seat.

Jordanian chief delegate Abdul Monem Rifa'i told a reporter that if no agreement could be reached on some informal method by Tuesday, he would demand in the assembly that the election be decided before Friday by the usual vote. That would bring on the big power showdown.

Guns Roar
In Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—Israelis and Jordanians exchanged fire in five border clashes today after a Christmas lull, an official spokesman said.

The spokesman said in the first incident this morning Jordanian troops opened fire on an Israeli patrol near the village of Budros. A few minutes later Jordanians opened fire on another patrol near the village of East Kassem, the spokesman said. The Israelis returned the fire.

About 90 minutes later Jordanians with light weapons fired at a patrol at East Kassem, the spokesman said. There was another exchange five minutes later, he said.

Ships Rush
To Freighter

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—British and French ships early today steamed toward the crippled 7,144-ton Lebanese vessel Katerina Samona sinking in the Atlantic 200 miles off Spain's northwest coast.

The 5,000-ton French ship Fort St. Pierre radioed the sinking ship and asked the master to prepare to abandon ship for a rescue bid.

The 6,855-ton British steamer St. Esprit also headed toward the rescue area.

The Katerina Samona, carrying a cargo of lumber from Vancouver to Plymouth, first radioed it was listing with two holds and the engine room flooded.

Later it radioed it was sinking and was jettisoning cargo.

Copters Waiting
Weather Break

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A snowstorm pounded parts of the flood-stricken west for the second day today, isolating hundreds in rough mountain country near the California-Oregon line.

Twenty-five military helicopters awaited a break in the weather to begin a massive supply and rescue mission to 500 persons in the Klamath and Salmon River areas of California's Siskiyou County.

The weather bureau predicted that the snow could reach more than three feet. Snow and flooding has cut off the communities of Sawyer's Bar, Salmon and Cecilville and Somes Bar for a week.

Meanwhile massive rescue and cleanup operations were forward farther west in the coastal Redwood Empire region of California.

The colder weather helped rivers recede throughout California, Oregon and Idaho after a week of rainstorms flooded thousands of square miles. Humboldt County on the northern California coast was a scene of desolation.

River Delta Littered With Debris

The shores of the Eel River delta were littered with carcasses of an estimated 3,000 dairy cows, redwood logs and lumber—the latter from saw mills and shattered homes.

At least two feet of snow were reported in the rugged Siskiyou.

"People could be up there freezing to death," reported civil defence chief Bill Sowle in Yreka, Calif. "They haven't had food for a week and might be without fuel."

Six days of rampaging floods, heavy rains and high winds have left at least 40 dead and damage estimated at $500 million in the west.

The Red Cross in Washington, D.C., said more than 16,300 families suffered flood losses to their homes, farms or businesses. The breakdown was 8,617 in California, 7,170 in Oregon, 365 in Idaho, and 149 in Washington.

The worst appeared over in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Nevada, but the task of repairing highways alone was a gigantic one. Floods washed away 23 bridges in Oregon, damaged or destroyed 60 in California and wiped out a dozen spans in Idaho's Shoshone County.

In California, the weather bureau reported that the new storm would cause some rivers to rise again.

Some major highways were cleared, but highway authorities estimated it would take months to rebuild in many areas.

Railroad service was partially restored but travel from California to Oregon was expected to be impossible at least until New Year's Day. Power still was out in many regions.

More than 30 helicopters, including those of the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Bennington, flew mercy missions as the weather permitted in California's Humboldt County. Reinforcements from bases throughout the west were scheduled to join the operation today.

At Crescent City, which was badly battered by tidal waves following the Alaska earthquake last spring, the harbor was jammed with debris washed down from the hills. Parts of houses, butane tanks, trees and dead livestock bobbed in the choppy waters.

The town also suffered a shortage of drinking water because the floods inundated the 300-foot-deep main well. Scores of other communities in the flood areas boiled drinking water to avoid typhoid fever.

In Portland, which was threatened for two days by the Willamette River, one resident said the drinking water tasted like "a mixture of chlorine and mud."

At Rio Dell in California, a cafe kept its gas camping stove going 24 hours a day with a pot of stew simmering for refugees who walked as far as 50 miles from their wrecked homes.

Meanwhile, hundreds of local law enforcement officials—together with representatives of the Red Cross, federal disaster agencies and civilian volunteers—pressed their efforts to help the thousands of stranded and homeless flood victims.

... presidentCoalition Votes Chief
For Italy

ROME (Reuters)—The National Assembly tonight elected Social-Democrat Foreign Minister Giuseppe Saragat, 66, president of the Italian republic ending the longest presidential election in European history.

The chamber of Deputies and the Senate, voting in joint session, elected Saragat on their 21st ballot in 13 days. Socialist Deputy Premier Pietro Nenni withdrew from the race after the 20th ballot this morning.

The Christian - Democrats, the Socialists, the Social-Democrats and the Republicans—the parties included in Premier Aldo Moro's left-of-centre coalition government, and the Communists all announced before the vote that they intended to back Saragat.

Saragat's election to replace ailing President Antonio Segni, who has not yet recovered from the stroke that led to his resignation, capped the longest presidential election in Europe since it took the French National Assembly 13 ballots to elect Rene Coty in 1953.

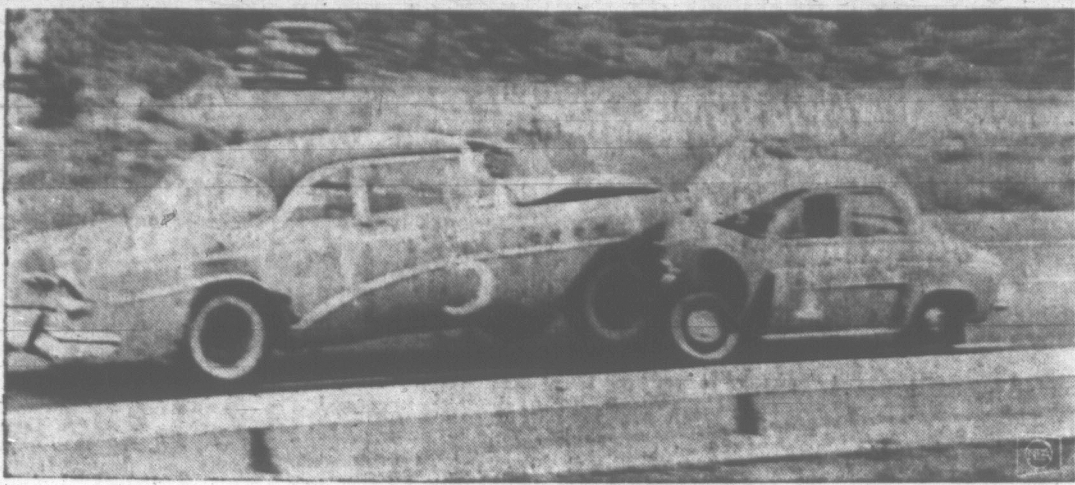

Legislators stood up and began applauding enthusiastically when the vote count. Saragat passed 482, the simple majority-plus-one of both houses required for election. He was elected with 646 votes.

Nenni withdrew shortly before the voting began on the 21st ballot.

Philip Plans Visit
To Australia In Feb

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip will visit Australia for a week in February, Buckingham Palace announced today. He is expected to arrive in Canberra Feb. 29 and to leave Australia from Sydney Feb. 26. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will pay state visits to Ethiopia and the Sudan from Feb. 1-12.

Open season declared on small cars.

CAR DEBATE ROLLS ON

Safety Tested in Crash Program

By JERRY SHEEHAN
NEW YORK (NEA)—Steel clashed with steel in a mighty crunch. Glass exploded and tinkled to the pavement. The Great Connecticut Car Crash had been, its promoters believed, a success.

Somebody in the state police had suspicion that small cars—especially foreign ones—were dangerous to occupants and should be kept off the highway. He went about "proving" his thesis by pitting Detroit juggernauts against the compacts.

The results of this demolition derby caused anguish among foreign and domestic small car manufacturers. The little cars clearly came through the encounter second best.

At one point a driverless big sedan missed its mark and sped around the area like a monster seeking to turn on its master. It was captured and sent careening into its European victim.

Small car defenders yelled foul. They pointed out that the small car hand brakes had been set before the collision. This was like sailing a man's shoes to the floor before hitting him with a poleax. Also, the protective spare tire in front of rear-engined cars had been removed.

To undercut the big car-big safety theory, a Texas auto dealer flattened a luxury-sized car with a truck.

Safety experts have now stepped into the controversy in hopes of creating light instead of noise. Among them, Dr. James Maffett of Columbia University. He concludes that "relative safety probably lies in the major use to which a car is put and in individual driving habits. . . . If a crash does occur, the occupants are better off in a big car, particularly if it has collided with a small one, but the chances for staying out of an accident are better in a small car."

a crash in the disintegrating vehicle.

Dr. B. J. Campbell, head of the Cornell Laboratory Accident Crash Program, is quick to point out that any disadvantages of smaller cars "can be offset by applying existing techniques of auto safety."

This means seat belts, chest harness, door safety latches, padded dash boards, dished steering wheels and the rest of the small items of highway existence which have been proved effective in saving life and limb.

Most American and foreign companies now are either supplying seat belts as standard equipment or building in the anchors for them at the assembly line.

For reasons known only to auto makers, very few cars are equipped with seat belt-harness combinations. This rig, standard on the Swedish Volvo, for example, has been shown far superior to the seat belt alone in times of abrupt stops or crashes.

YELLOW LIGHTS
Still no strides have been made in the United States in investigating the merits of yellow headlights for all cars. They have been proven less glaring to oncoming drivers. Renault alone is studying the safety factors of yellow lights, which are used in France.

A suggestion by a safety expert that green rear lights be considered as a means of making some order out of the chaos of night driving apparently has been ignored by the industry.

Although some authorities, such as the National Safety Council, are quick to blame excessive speed for a large proportion of accidents, other voices have called for a re-appraisal of existing speed limits. "Perhaps speed limits should be increased in some areas, they argue, to cut down on accidents."

The big car-small car controversy is not likely to find quick resolution. The job of staying alive on the nation's roads is a complicated one.

MAIN FACTOR

Dr. Maffett, director of Columbia's Safety Education Project, added: "The composite safety difference between big and little cars may be so small that driving competence alone is the overriding factor."

However, Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, Buffalo, N.Y., after a study of nearly 13,000 injury-producing car crashes, states that there is no reason to believe that small cars avoid accidents easier than large ones. There is insufficient evidence, says Cornell, to show that either big or little cars have a higher accident rate.

But the Cornell study does indicate that fatal injuries are about 50 per cent higher in little cars involved in serious accidents. And fatalities occur 30 per cent more often in medium-sized cars compared to big cars.

One possible reason may lie in the higher ejection rate of small cars—60 per cent more frequent. And risk of injury, say the experts, is twice as great if one is flying through the air rather than riding out

Israeli Firm to Sue Tanker for Collision

NEW YORK (AP)—A lawyer for the owners of the Israeli luxury liner Shalom said Sunday night they soon will file suit charging the Norwegian tanker Stolt Dagali with responsibility for the collision of the two vessels off New Jersey Nov. 26.

The lawyer indicated the Zim Israel Navigation Company, owners of the Shalom, will seek $2,000,000 in damages.

The tanker was sliced in two and 19 of her crew perished in the collision.

Announcement of the impending action was made Sunday night by lawyer Eugene F. Gilligan.

Gilligan said Zim will charge the tanker was the sole cause of the crash and claim it was moving at "immoderate" speed through fog, failed to stop engines on hearing a signal, and altered its course in violation of international rules.

Gilligan indicated the $2,000,000 sought in damages from the company that operated the Stolt Dagali will include repairs to the Shalom costing about $500,000.

A spokesman for the Norwegian operators could not be reached Sunday night.

A week ago in Oslo a spokesman for the Norwegian owners of the Stolt Dagali confirmed Swedish reports that lawyers had started legal action in Sweden against the Shalom owners.

It's an Open Secret And Fans Delighted

By MARK DICKINSON

The Secret Coffee House reopened with a happy note under the new management of Murray McAlpine on Saturday night.

Over 200 people filled the Secret to near capacity.

People of all ages, including a seven-year-old girl from England and a 76-year-old pensioner, spent their Boxing Day evening listening to top Canadian folk-singers, including Doug Shumka, a guitar teacher at a local music store.

This week's feature position is being held by Peter and Ginny from Montreal.

Peter Baril, a walking storehouse of more than 200 folk-songs from eight nations, will entertain at the Secret until Sunday.

Peter's presentation is more vocal with ballads than Shumka's somewhat instrumental performance featuring blues.

Proprietor McAlpine said he was pleased with the enthusiasm expressed by the people of Victoria in the Secret.

Ambulances Called After Noel Feasts

WARSAW (AP)—Ambulances have been rushing "to assist victims of gluttony" after the annual Christmas feasts, the Polish press agency reported Sunday.

It said Warsaw had 1,000 ambulance calls and Krakow had more than 1,000 Friday and Saturday.

Warsaw ambulances were called out at least 100 times Sunday to help those who ate too much, the Polish radio said.

In many Polish homes, Christmas is celebrated with eating and drinking sessions from which it is bad manners to leave. More food and wine was available in the stores this year and there was an extra day of holiday to recuperate.

Ambulances usually carry stomach pumps and smelling salts and haul the unconscious to clinics or sobering-up stations.
